Denies Nash Is Making Plans To Move From Badger State

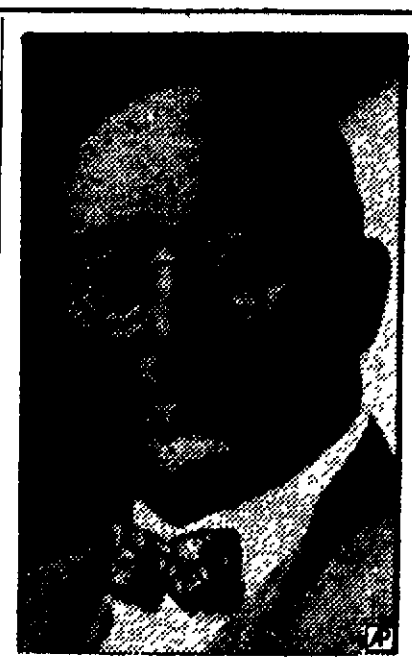

'No Intention at This Time of Removing Operations'

SETTLEMENT IS SEEN Plants Expected to be Reopened if Picketing Ends

Milwaukee—(P)—A spokesman for the Nash-Kelvinator corporation said today that to the best of his knowledge the corporation had "absolutely no intention at this time of removing operations from Wisconsin."

He said, however, there had been no change in previously announced plans to close tonight the Nash motors plant in Kenosha and the company's seaman body plant in Milwaukee.

The spokesman said he was "positive" both plants would reopen as soon as picketing members of the U.A.W. Nash-Kelvinator local at Racine withdrew to permit removal of tools, dies and other equipment needed in the manufacture of new 1939 cars from the Racine plant, which recently suspended operations.

RETAINS POST

Henry Ohl, Jr., was reelected president of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor at the Sheboygan convention. The closing hours of the convention were highlighted by a decision of the 600 delegates to reject a proposal for establishment of a state council for federal unions. Officers and delegates attacked the proposal as a dual movement. Several of the locals favored their own councils for settlement of local problems. Ohl led the fight against the council plan. The movement for peace overtures to the committee on industrial organization lost, by vote, for the second time during the convention in the closing hours Saturday.

Hopkins Outlines Program to Help Stricken States

Confers With New England Governors, New York Representatives

Boston—(P)—As Harry L. Hopkins, national works progress administrator, mapped a rehabilitation program with governors of the hurricane-stricken New England states, relief workers today brought the total identified dead to above 450 through discovery of more bodies in the storm area.

The first thing the federal government wants to know, Hopkins told six New England governors and representatives from New York, "what needs to be done, what should be done and when and how it should be done."

He announced all storm projects would be put on an emergency basis, with all ordinary regulations waived and no limit placed on hours of work.

Makes Survey

Hopkins toured the devastated areas by airplane and automobile during the weekend. Authorities estimated property damage in Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Vermont and New Hampshire at about $200,000,000 and the latest toll of death by states stood:

Rhode Island, 239; Massachusetts, 128; Connecticut, 68; New Hampshire, 13; Vermont, 5.

That list included only identified dead and it appeared probable the final toll would be more than 500. Bodies still were being recovered, particularly in Rhode Island along the 10-mile shore stretch from Westerly to Charlestown. There was no central clearing agency to give a final list of victims.

Girl Wounded in Fight Succumbs in Chicago

Chicago—(P)—Lucille Summerfield, 18, wounded Thursday when gunned used her as a shield during a battle with police in a north side handbuck, died today. She had contracted pneumonia from a bullet wound in the chest.

The gunmen carried pistols and a sawed-off shotgun when they entered the handbuck where the young dancing instructor had placed a bet. John Bazulka, 33, partner of the betting establishment, was slain as he sat in the cashier's cage. Police were summoned and one robber surrendered. Another, Charles Lane, seized the girl, held her in front of him and fired at the policemen. Lane and Miss Summerfield were wounded and a third bandit killed when the officers returned the fire.

At the girl's bedside were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Summerfield, Kenett, Mo.

Roosevelt Asks Hitler, Czechs To Keep Peace

Hull Extends President's Appeal to Include Poland and Hungary

FEARS WAR EFFECTS

France and Great Britain Rejoice Over President's Message

Washington—(P)—President Benes of Czechoslovakia told President Roosevelt today he believed that the Czech-German dispute could be settled "without resort to force."

He added, however, "the Czechoslovak nation would defend itself were it attacked."

Benes' statement was in reply to a dramatic plea from President Roosevelt that the German and Czechoslovakian nations settle their differences peacefully.

Czechoslovakia, Benes said, "is profoundly convinced with you that in the end war solves no problem and that is a case in which reason, a sense of humanity and the principle of justice should triumph."

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt decided today to hold a special cabinet meeting tomorrow to consider the crisis in Europe.

White House aides said the cabinet session had been moved up from Friday to Tuesday because of conditions abroad.

The president, they added, was keeping in touch with reports from Europe as they came in, minute by minute.

Washington—(P)—Secretary of State Hull extended today the scope of President Roosevelt's appeal for world peace to include Poland and Hungary.

He said instructions had been sent to American Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., at Warsaw, Poland, and to Minister John F. Montgomery, at Budapest, Hungary, to deliver to those governments copies of the urgent plea for peace, which President Roosevelt sent earlier today to Germany, Czechoslovakia, France and Great Britain.

He said no such instructions were sent to Moscow.

President Roosevelt's message, dispatched dramatically in the early morning hours directly to Hitler and Benes and through Secretary of State Hull to Premier Chamberlain of Great Britain and Daladier of France, earnestly asked them "not to break off negotiations looking to a peaceful, fair and constructive settlement of the questions at issue."

He told them war's consequences were "incalculable," that millions of men, women and children would lose their lives, the economic system of every country involved was "certain to be shattered" and their social structure "may well be completely wrecked."

The president and Secretary Hull spent most of Sunday working on the message they felt they could not hold up any longer.

Peace Endangered

The message was so timed as to be received by Hitler, Benes, Chamberlain and Daladier when they were in conference.

Another Reported Seriously Burned; Damage Set at $500,000

Robinson, Ill.—(P)—One man was killed and another burned seriously early today in a series of explosions at the Ohio Oil Refining company plant here. Two buildings burned and several gasoline tanks exploded, causing damages estimated unofficially at $500,000.

Robert Freeman, 30, died of burns suffered in the blast, reported to have followed an attempt to plug a leaking naphtha line. Orville Lowther, 27, painfully burned, was taken to the Robinson sanitarium.

The fire which followed the first blast burned two buildings and ignited several adjacent tanks of gasoline. A large crowd was attracted by the fire and explosions.

Lift Suspension on DePere Police Chief

DePere—(P)—The police and fire commission today lifted its suspension of Chief of Police William DePere when Mayor Rudolph Ruppert withdrew his request for the removal of DePere from office.

Mayor Ruppert informed the commission he had learned the charges brought against the chief were based on "misinformation."

DePere was suspended last Wednesday after a complaint was made to the mayor that the chief refused to arrest a suspect in the theft of sacred vessels from the local St. Boniface church.

'Surrender Sudeten Area or We'll Take Matters Into Own Hands,' Hitler Warns

British Envoy Carries Chamberlain's Message to Fuehrer

WAR PLANS PUSHED

France and England Prepare to Coordinate Efforts

London—(AP)—Britain made it clear tonight that she and soviet Russia would join France in a triple front to aid Czechoslovakia in the event of a German invasion.

A statement to that effect came from a highly authoritative source at 9:20 P. M. (3:20 P. M., E.S.T.), while Adolf Hitler in a speech to the German nation was demanding the cession of the Sudeten area to Germany before next Saturday.

It was understood that a warning of triple front was conveyed to Hitler tonight by Sir Horace Wilson, special British emissary, three hours before the Fuehrer began his speech to tell the world he had made his last offer on the Czechoslovak question.

At the same time Britain appealed for a peaceful settlement of the crisis rocking Europe and said, "it is not too late."

This statement of Britain's position came after a two-day consultation with heads of the French government and joint moves of military preparedness taken when the two powers found they were unable to meet Hitler's boosted price for peace.

The statement said: "It is stated in official quarters that during the last week Prime Minister Chamberlain has tried with the German chancellor to find a way of settling peacefully the Czechoslovak question."

"It is still possible to do so by negotiation."

"Germany's claim to transfer of the Sudeten areas has already been conceded by the French, British and Czechoslovak governments."

"But if, in spite of all efforts made by the British prime minister, a German attack is made upon Czechoslovakia, the immediate result must be that France will be bound to come to her assistance and Great Britain and Russia will stand by France."

"It is still not too late to stop this great tragedy for the peoples of all nations to insist on settlement by free negotiation."

It was not clear from the statement whether the German invasion referred to meant invasion of Czechoslovakia's present territories or Czechoslovakia with the Sudeten areas removed.

Sees Threat of Reich Supremacy in Europe

New York—(P)—Colonel Vladimir Hurban, Czechoslovakian minister to the United States, commented today on his arrival from Europe on President Roosevelt's appeal for arbitration in the Czech controversy, said: "We offer Germany arbitration. It was refused."

"The question is not one of liberating the German minorities," Colonel Hurban said when he was asked to comment on the Roosevelt appeal. "The question is one of opening the path of German supremacy and domination of Europe."

"Our whole attitude since the beginning of the crisis has been that we tried to settle the question in a peaceful manner. We made sacrifices as far as the security of our people would stand."

Colonel Hurban was accompanied by President Benes' brother, Vojta, who will make a speaking tour of the United States in behalf of his country.

Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen Votes Strike at 12:01 A. M. Oct. 1, Union Head Tells Management Group

Chicago—(P)—President A. F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen today informed H. A. Enoch, chairman of the railroad management conference committee, and William M. Leiserson, chairman of the national mediation board, that the brotherhood had voted to strike at 12:01 a. m. Saturday, Oct. 1.

Whitney said the notification was made by telegram.

The wire to Leiserson said: "Members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen representing approximately 160,000 train and yard service employees and dining car stewards employed on railroads represented by the carriers' joint conference committee headed by H. A. Enoch, have by practically unanimous vote expressed their determination to withdraw from the service of these railroads unless the carriers recede from their announced intention of forcing upon said employees the proposed wage cut."

British Anti-Aircraft and Coast Defense Reserves are Summoned for Active Duty

Measures Called Precautionary; Parliament Meets Wednesday

London—(P)—War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha today called out officers and men of the anti-aircraft and coast defense units of Britain's territorial army.

This is a reserve force charged with manning all anti-aircraft guns, searchlights and air defenses.

All regular royal air force men on leave and royal air force observation corps also were called.

Authorities stressed that both measures were purely precautionary and did not constitute mobilization.

They came while a trusted envoy took Adolf Hitler a last-stand message from Britain and France and after Prime Minister Chamberlain had summoned parliament for Wednesday.

Royal air force precautions also included institution of an air raid warning system.

At the request of the Food Defense Plans Committee, produce exchanges throughout the country agreed to hold down the prices of bacon, ham, butter, cheese, lard, cooking fats and margarine to their present levels for two weeks.

King Cancels Visit

King George VI cancelled his visit to Glasgow to attend the launching of the great new liner, Queen Elizabeth, Queen Elizabeth will go alone tomorrow.

Americans Turned Back as They Try To Reach Germany

Forced to Return to Prague; Paris Plans Partial Evacuation

Brussels, Belgium—(P)—The Belgian cabinet, after a hurried session today recalled soldiers on leave.

A communique said the government decided to "complete military measures taken previously by decreeing the recall of men on indefinite leave belonging to the regiment of Ardennes Chasseurs, the corps of mechanized cavalry and certain classes of fortress troops."

Washington—(P)—The state department reported today the German frontier along Czechoslovakia was closed and American citizens attempting to leave Czechoslovakia via Germany had to turn back and return to Prague.

The department said the American minister in Prague, Wilbur Carr, had telephoned and telegraphed the embassy in Berlin urgently to effectuate an arrangement whereby American citizens could enter Germany and get to Germany.

The embassy and consulate in Berlin, the department said, are striving to win this concession.

Americans who had German visas and tickets to Paris, and steamship tickets as well, were unable, Carr reported, to get across the German frontier at Eger yesterday.

War Up to President Benes, He Asserts; Sees No Reason Why France and Germany Should Not Have Peace; Says Reich Has Armed Force 'Like of Which World Has Never Seen'

CALLS OUT RESERVE

Leslie Hore-Belisha, Great Britain's war secretary, today called out officers and men of the anti-aircraft and coast defense units of the British territorial army. It was stressed that the summons did not constitute mobilization.

As the Fuehrer reached this part of his address "to the entire reich" on the European crisis, his voice rose to a higher pitch and his words came faster.

He declared "I wanted to secure durable peace with Britain," but then voiced his dissatisfaction with the Anglo-German naval treaty limiting German seapower.

Hail Reciprocal Trade Treaties

Business Leaders Address National Conference On Distribution

Boston—(P)—Leaders of business, in addresses before a national conference on distribution, today endorsed adjustment of trade barriers to promote freer exchange of goods and services in a world threatened by war and praised America's reciprocal trade treaties.

Thomas J. Watson, president of the international chamber of commerce, addressing a conference by short-wave radio from Bucharest, Rumania, declared that with "fair adjustments of trade barriers" "the proper exchange of goods and services" there never would be need for "soldiers marching across the borders."

N. Baillet Scott of London, reading an address prepared for delivery by Rt. Hon. Viscount Leverhulme, governor of Lever Brothers and Unilever, Ltd., of London, said, "the world as a whole should be grateful to your secretary of state, Cordell Hull, for seeking all such opportunities as may be possible for encouraging an earlier and freer interchange of goods and services between those nations which are willing to cooperate."

Major Changes in House Committees Seen in Congress

Roosevelt's Program May Hinge Largely on Assignments

Washington—(AP)—The success of President Roosevelt's legislative program in the next congress, politicians say, may hinge largely on the outcome of a scramble for choice house committee assignments.

Primary defeats, retirements and resignations already have removed many members of such important committees as the ways and means and appropriations. "The general elections in November may create other vacancies."

Democrats held most of the committee positions already certain to be vacant and capitol veterans said today that unless party leaders exercised great skill in assigning newcomers, there might be realignments which would give Republicans and conservative Democrats enough votes on some committees to delay important legislation.

In the senate, there was less prospect of important changes in committee memberships.

Situation in Senate

The death of Senator Copeland (D-N. Y.) probably will elevate Senator Bailey (D-N. C.) to the chairmanship of the commerce committee.

Talk that Senator Wagner (D-N. Y.) might be persuaded by New York state party leaders to run for governor had caused speculation as to the possible effect on the important banking and currency committee which he heads. Wagner said last night, however, that he would not accept nomination to any office other than senator.

Two factors, each of double-edged significance, give the administration a vital interest in house committee appointments:

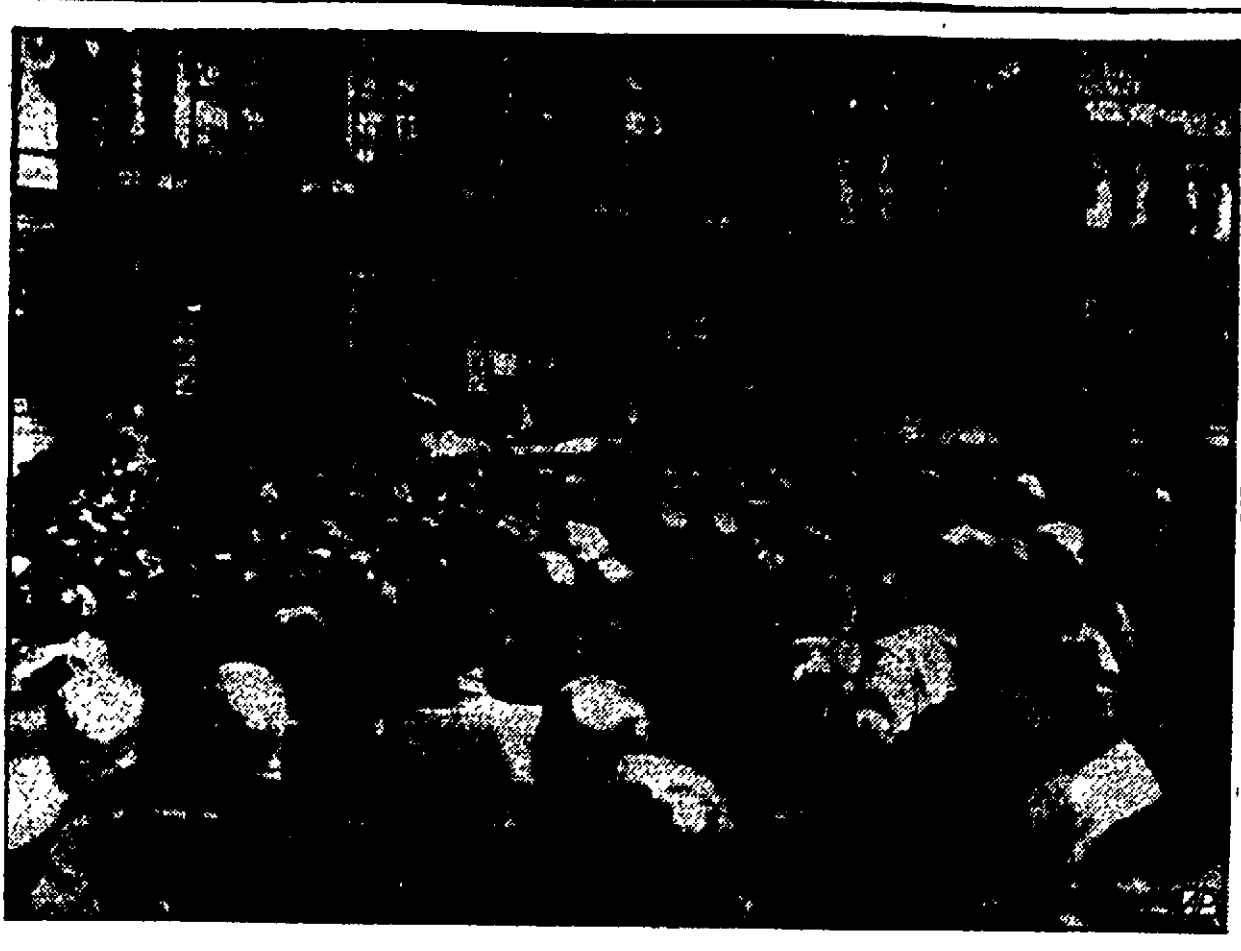

1. If Republican predictions of a gain of 100 seats prove accurate, the party will be in a position to demand that the number of Democrats on committees be reduced and the number of Republicans increased. Republicans have said they had no hope of gaining control of the house.

Shift in Committees

A turnover of 76 seats would mean that Democrats on minor committees would attempt to fill vacancies on more important ones. The resultant shake-ups might give anti-administration forces a preponderance of strength on some committees.

2. The ways and means committee has lost six members, five of them Democrats. Of the five, three were strong supporters of Roosevelt policies and two voted with the administration more frequently than against it.

House Democrats elect ways and means committeemen who in turn, choose Democratic members of other standing committees, subject to the approval of a party caucus.

PARIS COMMUNIQUE

Paris—(AP)—The ministry of public works, "because of circumstances," today called upon all persons who were ready to do so to evacuate Paris by rail. A communique said:

"Because of circumstances the ministry of public works invites all persons who desire to leave Paris to use the railway facilities which now are guaranteed to them."

The ministry announced that all necessary measures had been taken by the railways to evacuate the civilian population of the capital if the European crisis developed into war.

"All measures have been taken to cope with the increasing outflow of persons toward the provinces," said the communique.

Premier Edouard Daladier, back from his London meeting with heads of the British government, went to the Elysee palace where he and President Albert Lebrun were to hear Reichsfuehrer Hitler's speech "to the entire reich."

The premier said that early convocation of the cabinet would "depend on Hitler's speech."

There were strong indications he was doing so.

A carefully-marked map accompanied the German demands, which Premier Chamberlain agreed Friday at Godesberg to transmit to the Czechoslovaks.

The terms outlined by a reliable informant were said to be:

1. The fringe of Czechoslovakia shaded red on Hitler's map, including all the country's fortifications facing Germany, to be handed over by Oct. 1 after withdrawal of all Czechoslovak forces.

2. The evacuated territory to be handed over without destruction of any military, economic or traffic plants, air services or radio stations.

3. All railway rolling stock and utility services to be handed over undamaged. No foodstuffs, cattle or raw materials to be removed.

4. Prague must discharge immediately all Sudeten Germans in its army and police forces and "permit them to return home."

5. Prague must free all German political prisoners.

6. Germany agrees to permit a plebiscite in areas shaded green on Hitler's map before Nov. 25, and allow a German-Czechoslovak or international commission to make any resulting frontier modifications a simple majority to determine whether an area would go to Germany or Czechoslovakia.

Refugees in Park

At least one industrial city ordered parks dug up for air raid refugees.

Gaunt little Sir Horace Wilson of the foreign office carried Chamberlain's personal message to Hitler.

Sir Horace—sometimes called the prime minister's one-man "brain trust" and sometimes his "office boy"—was with Chamberlain at the dismal parting from the fuhrer in Godesberg last Friday night.

With Chamberlain, he rode up the Petersberg mountain along the Rhine in the early hours of Saturday with Hitler's ultimatum to Czechoslovakia—cession of her Sudetenland by next Saturday, Oct. 1.

Britain, of course, kept secret what Sir Horace was taking back to Hitler now that the Czechoslovaks seem certain to reject the ultimatum.

Possibilities in Message

But there were these reported possibilities:

1. A fervent appeal to Hitler to leave the door open to peaceful settlement.

2. Suggestions for an alternative to the ultimatum which would let Hitler show his troops to some part of Sudetenland and yet prevent certain strangulation of the rest of Czechoslovakia.

3. A flat notice that Britain and France would not push Prague into acceptance of the ultimatum.

4. A plain statement that German war on Czechoslovakia was certain to bring the western democracies into action against Germany—ultimately if not immediately.

The message to Hitler was sent before the French statesmen left London and shortly after President Roosevelt's appeal to the fuhrer was divulged.

Firm Stand Asked

Announcement that it had been sent came as Premier Daladier, Foreign Minister Bonnet and French Ambassador Charles Corbin left the prime minister's residence and before the full British cabinet session started.

Although there was no immediate interpretation of the nature of Chamberlain's letter, some quarters believed a demand by Winston Churchill, one of Britain's elder statesmen, for a belligerent stand against possible aggression by Hitler might indicate the contents.

The Czechoslovak reply to Germany's memorandum containing "final terms" for a settlement was conveyed to the foreign office by Minister Jan Masaryk last night and the cabinet undoubtedly received the document during the morning meeting, which adjourned at 1:10 p. m. (6:10 a. m. C.S.T.).

Carries Czech Reply?

Official sources declined to say whether Wilson was taking the Czechoslovak reply with him, but

Roosevelt Asks Hitler, Czechs To Keep Peace

rose this morning to look on a war-threatened Europe.

Telling them "the fabric of peace on the continent of Europe, if not throughout the rest of the world, is in immediate danger, the president declared:

"It is my conviction that all people under the threat of war today pray that peace may be made before, rather than after, war."

Mr. Roosevelt carefully stated that "the United States has no political entanglements" and "is caught in no mesh of hatred."

The supreme desire of the American people," he said, "is to live in peace. But in the event of a general war they face the fact that no nation can escape some measure of the consequences of such a world catastrophe."

"The traditional policy of the United States has been the furtherance of the settlement of international disputes by pacific means."

Signed Kellogg Pact

Mr. Roosevelt also called to the attention of the four European leaders the fact that nations are signatories to the Kellogg-Briand pact outlawing war and have treaties of arbitration and conciliation for settlement of difficulties.

"Whatever may be the differences in the controversies at issue," he told them, "and however difficult of pacific settlement they may be, I am persuaded that there is no problem so difficult or so pressing for solution that it can not be justly solved by the resort to reason rather than by the resort to force."

The telegram was interpreted as a warning to the American people that, however isolationist some might want to be, they could not escape the consequences of war.

Mr. Roosevelt's telegram was addressed only to the leaders of four states.

WARNS AMERICANS
Wilbur J. Carr (above), United States minister to Czechoslovakia, has issued a warning to Americans to be ready for immediate departure from the country. He warned that it might become impossible for them to leave at any time.

Henlein Inspects Free Corps; Goes Back to Germany

Leaves 150 Legionnaires To Reinforce Asch Volunteers

Asch, Czechoslovakia—(AP)—Nazi Sudeten Leader Konrad Henlein crossed back into Czechoslovakia, spent an hour inspecting his Sudeten free corps fighters' front line, then returned today to his party headquarters at Bayreuth, Germany.

He left 150 free corps legionnaires, who had accompanied him on his first survey of the line, to reinforce Asch volunteers.

They had guns heavy enough to halt attack by armored cars or tanks.

The Sudeten fuhrer ordered that combat with Czechoslovak troops be avoided.

The Asch volunteers and free corps reinforcements—the latter said to be composed entirely of Sudeteners who had fled Germany—according to his order were to defend the Asch "free territory," which the Czechs have not tried to take.

No More Recruits

They were not, he said, to attack Franzensbad or Eger.

The only preventive weapons, said a spokesman for the Asch Sudeten government, were on the front line. No more recruits, he said, were expected.

Henlein was greeted joyfully when he appeared unexpectedly, riding at the head of five bus loads of free corps fighters.

The Sudeten fuhrer arrived at the first line held by his free corps troops on the Asch-Eger highway at 9:25 a. m. (3:25 a. m. C.S.T.).

He led his legionnaires to within three-quarters of a mile of Czechoslovak soldiers stationed at Ober Lohma.

The Sudeteners intended apparently to push on farther toward the city of Eger. An Asch government official said, "We would take the city of Eger, if we could."

DALADIER'S REPLY

London—(AP)—Premier Edouard Daladier of France, leaving London after momentous face-to-face consultations with British ministers, gratefully replied today to President Roosevelt's appeal for peace in Europe.

"Your moving appeal reached me in London at the very moment when, in close cooperation with the British government, France was making a supreme attempt with a view to safeguarding all possibility of amicable settlement of the conflict that is threatening."

"It is of special value to me that under your high moral authority the devotion of the entire American nation to the principles which have been recognized and publicly acknowledged by all parties to the Kellogg pact is now solemnly reaffirmed."

Winnabago Indian Wins Cranberry Raking Contest

Wisconsin—(AP)—A Winnabago Indian, Ralph Mann, 28, of the Guy Potter marsh near Camp Douglas, won the 1938 cranberry raking contest yesterday at the Bennett and Son marsh.

Nine of the field of ten were Winnabagoes. Mann won in a rake-off with Bill and Jesse Mike, Indian cousins both of whom are former champions, and Sam Hiles, the lone non-Indian entered.

The four tied with about 5 1/2 bushels each in the regular 15-minute period of raking. In the rake-off, Mann harvested his two bushels first.

The contest featured the annual cranberry festival sponsored by the Wisconsin Rapids Junior Chamber of Commerce. The event concluded last night after a festival parade.

When the fog lifted he discovered he had followed a freighter far out into the Pacific.

After his gasoline and food supplies were exhausted a tuna clipper took him in tow.

Federation Will Back LaFollette

Farmer - Labor Group Pledges Support for Progressive Candidates

Madison—(AP)—The Farmer-Labor Progressive Federation through its executive board today pledged active support for state and national Progressive candidates and indicated it would support Governor LaFollette, whom it refused to endorse for renomination, in his campaign for a fourth term.

Henry Rutz, Milwaukee, federation secretary, also announced plans were being made to hold a Progressive farm and labor meeting at which an "enlarged program of organization" will be launched.

Besides Rutz, Mayor Daniel Hoan, of Milwaukee, George Hampel, Milwaukee, and State Senator Harold M. Groves, Madison, were present at the meeting.

The statement did not mention the governor's name but urged "all supporters of the federation to unite in active support of the entire Progressive ticket."

The federation did not endorse either Governor LaFollette or Glenn Turner, Madison Socialist, in the primaries. However, board members explained that the limitation of endorsements to federation members applied only to primaries, and in no wise prevented endorsement of LaFollette or other nonmembers in the general election.

Representative Thomas Amlic, Elkhorn, supported by the federation in his race against Ekern for the United States senatorial nomination, was congratulated for "an excellent campaign."

Mussolini Urges Britain, France to Abandon Czechs To Fate; Sees 'New Europe'

Verona, Italy—(AP)—Benito Mussolini today advised Britain and France to save Europe from war by leaving Czechoslovakia to her fate.

He suggested in a speech before 47,000 fascists that war might thus be entirely averted, since Czechoslovakia perhaps would recognize the futility of fighting Germany alone.

He twice implied he was to reason for resistance to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's demand.

"The German memorandum does not deviate from the line which was approved at the London meeting," he declared, referring to Hitler's Godesberg memorandum and the Anglo-French proposals previously submitted to the Prague government.

"There are still several days to reach a peaceful solution," he said. "If this is not achieved, it is almost beyond human power to prevent a conflict."

Sees 'New Europe'

Directing his speech at Italy's "adversaries," he declared that "a new Europe" might be created this week.

He said Italy stood for a "new Europe" which would replace the "dying" one constructed at Versailles.

"It is useless for diplomats to try to save Versailles," he asserted.

The Europe which was so constructed at Versailles—very often with colossal ignorance of geography and history—this Versailles is dying. Its fate will be decided this week.

"It is during this week that a new Europe may rise up. This will be a Europe of justice for all peoples and of reconciliation among peoples."

Would Avert War

He said Italy's "adversaries" were gathered under the triangle (of Free Masonry) and the hammer and sickle (of communism).

Today's speech was the eighth it had made since he reaffirmed the strength of the Rome-Berlin axis last Sunday at Trieste and declared that Italy's place "is already chosen" in the event of a general Europe conflict.

He repeated his statement that war might be averted.

"I still believe that Europe will not come to the point of subjecting itself to fire and sword, that it will not burn itself to cook the rotten eggs of Prague," he said. "Europe faces many needs but certainly the least urgent of all is that of increasing the number of graveyards which spring up so frequently on the frontiers of nations."

He again expressed hope that if war did come it could be localized.

German Dictator Finds Himself in Awkward Position

Doesn't Want More Than a Local War, Lads-rence States

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—It is difficult to describe the extent to which European war clouds have penetrated the domestic situation. Every national policy, every aspect of the coming congressional elections, every discussion of economic recovery touches at one place or another the question of whether there is to be world peace or world war.

Lawrence
prevailing hunch, so to speak, is that there will be no general war.
Every move in Europe is closely watched and there is fairly comprehensive information available to our officials as to what is happening.

The meaning of the events of the past week and the speculation as to what will happen this week are directly related not so much to surface developments, but to the basic problem. Are the blustering European nations which issue their partial mobilization orders and their threats really ready for war? And are the peoples themselves ready to fight?

The feeling here has been one of mounting suspicion that, if there were really to be war, the preparations would be farther along and the mobilization of Europe's armies would be more extensive. What then might lie back of the various diplomatic moves being made?

The answer which has a certain plausibility to it is that, once there is aligned against Hitler a definite number of nations with a definite military strength, Germany will not permit another war. For, obviously, it would be foolish for Hitler to risk a war in which defeat was certain or a war in which his economic resources would be sapped too soon.
If Hitler were required to deal with Czechoslovakia alone, he would take the chance of an invasion with the hope of acquiring all the territory of the Czechs.

Mussolini Nervous
But will the war be localized to that extent? Plainly, Mussolini wants it localized. He, too, has economic troubles. He makes speeches with plenty of bluster in them, but he voices the hope of a local war, if any. Probably no head of a state in Europe, with the possible exception of Hitler, is more nervous than Mussolini.

Hitler, on the other hand, does not know at what moment Russia,
France, Britain, Yugoslavia and Rumania will be aligned against him if he carries his campaign against the Czechs to extremity. He can in-sue, as he has done, an ultimatum with strong terms, but it is significant that he gives a week for it to be considered. The German general staff of 1914 would have told him not to give a week's time, but to strike at once while the democracies are floundering.

The very period of negotiation has itself proved a disadvantage to Hitler, if he is really bent on war at any cost. During that period, world opinion has been mobilized against Hitler in the democracies, and likewise the slow-moving democracies have had time to deal with the anti-war sentiment in their ranks
by building up a case against Hitler as the aggressor. Even the anti-war groups in England have been face to face with the fact that the Chamberlain policy of negotiation and concession may not mean peace, but only a temporary truce till the next Hitler coup d'etat is devised in Central Europe.

Public opinion will decide the issue inside the democratic countries, but public opinion inside Germany and Austria will have nothing to say. Hitler has all the power and authority. He, therefore, makes all the decisions and must trust to the skill of his diplomacy to win a victory without bloodshed which would enhance his prestige at home more than the mess of a war. For, in war-time, guns are put into the

Appleton Motorist Is Fined for Speeding

Waldemar John Belling, 1625 N. Appleton street, pleaded guilty of speeding and was fined $10 and costs with an alternative of 20 days in the county detention camp by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning. Belling was arrested by city police early Sunday morning.

A.M.Kahler Draws Winning Insignia In State Contest

Drawing Will be Official Seal of Credit Union League Paper

Arthur M. Kahler, 1904 N. Drew street, of the Appleton Postal Credit Union, won a state-wide contest conducted by the Wisconsin State Credit Union league for an insignia to be used as an official seal and design for the Wisconsin Supplement, the official publication of the league office. The award was $20 in cash.

Mr. Kahler, who was instrumental in organizing the first credit union in Outagamie county now is the hands of millions of people and their leaders, and sometimes, as has proved true in 1918. They over-throw even their emperor if they think that's the only way to get food and clothing and peace.

Allied Countries
The allied countries have had a preponderant anti-war sentiment to deal with. They, too, know that more war might bring dictatorships in Britain and France and democracy might temporarily be effaced. But, if the cause is plainly one of self-defense, if it is not a war of exploitation or conquest, but a war forced on democratic peoples by an aggressor who has become a menace to all mankind, then the war becomes a crusade for a just cause, and unity rather than disunity, solidarity rather than division ensues.

At this vantage point, where the whole European problem can be viewed more objectively than in the European capitals, the belief is rapidly crystallizing that Hitler is playing trump cards in the boldest bluff of all history, but that the one thing he did not count upon—and few dictators or war lords, with their technical minds, know anything about popular psychology of peoples other than their own—was the fighting spirit of the Czechs and the desperateness with which a proud people will defend its frontiers. Czechoslovakia, by her mobilization order, has stiffened the British and French and won the admiration of the whole world. And she may really have saved not only her autonomy as a republic, but the peace of the whole world.

For it grows obvious that Czechoslovakia mobilized her army of 2,000,000 not to resist the cession of the Sudeten territory, but to checkmate any Hitler march beyond that point and to demonstrate to all Europe that the Czechs believe a show of physical force is the only thing which will persuade Hitler to wiggle out of the awkward situation into which he has plunged himself. His dilemma has been skillfully intensified by the masterful strategy of Premier Chamberlain by his personal visits, which have been given publicity to all the world so that the essential facts have dragged the unjust cause of Hitlerism into full view of the British and French peoples as well as the peoples across the seas.

If a prophecy may be ventured at this time, it is that Hitler will compromise and adjust the situation and Europe will soon know that Hitler is by no means unmanageable.

Catholic Youth Softball Teams Banquet Tonight

Plans for Basketball Season Will be Made at Business Session

Kaukauna — The largest event of its kind ever to be held in the Green Bay diocese, a banquet and program for some 300 members of the Catholic Youth Organizations of the district, will be held tonight at St. Mary's church. The winning softball team in Catholic league play this summer will be honored at a 6:30 banquet, with a dance following. Delegations from three Oshkosh C. Y. O.'s Holy Cross and St. Mary's of Kaukauna, Combined Locks, Darbo, Chilton, Wrights-town and Freedom will attend.

Plans for the basketball season will be made at a short business meeting. An 8-team league is contemplated and the schedule will be drawn.

The Rev. Martin Vosbeck, Green Bay diocesan head of the C. Y. O., will talk and show motion pictures. He will discuss C. Y. O. activities and outline his plan for the formation of deaconry units. Kaukauna city officials and clergy from neighboring cities are expected to attend.

The Rev. John Haen, assistant pastor of St. Mary's church and C. Y. O. director, and Ken Vils, organization president, are in charge of the event.

Bowlers at Kaukauna Are Facing Busy Week

Kaukauna — Kaukauna's bowlers have a busy week ahead, with the third league, the Fraternal league, starting play Friday night, and the Commercial and Ladies leagues going into their second week. Tomorrow night at 7 o'clock the Post Office and Jirikovic and Gustman and Little Chute fives of the Commercial league will roll, with the Mellow Brews opposing Witt's and Thilmany against the Kaukauna Electrics.

Thursday night in the Ladies' league Simons play Vandenzens, Franks play Titmans, Goldins play Schells, and Renns will play Gertz.

High School Camera Club to be Organized

Kaukauna — With membership limited to 25 students the Camera club of Kaukauna High school will organize soon. Henry Grieschler, faculty adviser, has announced that outside speakers will appear before the group to lecture on phases of photography. Last year's members will have first opportunity to join, with freshmen not eligible for membership.

F. B. I. Man to Speak At Meeting of Clubs

Kaukauna — The Kaukauna Rotary club will be the guests of the Lions club at a dinner and program at Hotel Kaukauna Oct. 11. B. E. Sackett, Milwaukee special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, will speak on "Modern Law Enforcement Problems." Members of the Kaukauna police department will be guests. The Rotarians will not hold their regular meeting that week.

JUNIOR C.Y.O. TO MEET

Kaukauna — Holy Cross C.Y.O. junior group, will meet at 7:30 Thursday evening in the church auditorium. Plans for fall activities will be made.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. William Dowling is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

24 Students Using New Bus to Reach Kaukauna Classes

Kaukauna — Twenty-four students are now using the new school bus to come from rural areas to Kaukauna High school, with the football team the first athletic organization to make use of the carrier when it journeyed to Neenah Saturday. The vehicle was purchased by Elwood Kobussen, route 3, Kaukauna, when the board of education, which had contemplated buying a bus for the school, found that Wisconsin statutes did not specifically give school boards authority to transport students to school who lived outside of the school district. Bids for a bus had been advertised for, but were returned unopened.

The bus leaves Kobussen's home at 6:20 every morning and returns by 3 o'clock. The bus leaves Kaukauna at 3:45. James T. Judd, high school agricultural instructor, describes the bus service as "one that we can't afford to be without." Wisconsin is a rural state, Judd said, and the trade of its large rural areas is desirable. Parents are likely to trade where their children go to school.

The bus, in addition to transporting the tuition students, is to be used for all out of the city athletic trips and for transporting the band, glee clubs, debate teams and other organizations to tournaments and other gatherings.

An inexperienced St. Mary's team, with only four players from last year, had little chance against the strong Kimberly eleven, with Coach Jack Licht's men being pushed about almost at will. Dies Committee Still Has Lots of Work to Do

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER
New York — There is something pathetic about the proposal of Representative Martin Dies to form a great league to preserve the fundamental principles of Americanism and to oppose fascism and communism in the United States. Mr. Dies, chairman of the house committee on un-American activities, seems to underrate the influence of his own inquiry. Contrary to his apparent belief, his investigation to date has had good effect and if continued, with due attention to the activities of Italian fascists and German nazl groups, will command the respectful attention of the nation. On the other hand, there is a danger that an emotional nationalist organization would develop into a strong-arm machine itself, and certainly it is unwise to create such a force under the influence of a committee of congress.

Whatever distress it may cause completely loyal citizens of Italian or German origin or stock, the fact remains that both Italian fascists and German nazis here do abuse the tolerance of this country. Black shirts join brown shirts in demonstrations of contempt for the American form of government and for those of similar blood who cherish American liberties. Not only that, but by the terrible power of brutal reprisals of the kin of such Americans still residing in the old countries they wield a coercive force over American citizens in the United States.

The enemy of Mussolini and Hitler for this country and its people has been expressed repeatedly. Mussolini's papers constantly call us a nation of gangsters, and, as Mr. Ciantarra, of the New York Times, recently wrote from Rome, a decent word has not been written of this country in the Italian press in more than two years. This is the policy of the Italian government.

Difficult to Protect Those Who Give Testimony
Hitler expressed his intentions when one of his state newspapers threatened that the Reich would take an interest in American affairs which would not be pleasant. This intervention in American affairs is to be seen in the activities of the nazi bund, our equivalent of the Henlein conspiracy in Czechoslovakia.

Mr. Dies has paid too little attention to the fascists and the nazis. And, although he has done good work on the communists, as their angry protests show, even that job is incomplete. It is a sad state of affairs, but even in this free country this committee of congress will find it hard to protect from vengeance American citizens giving testimony against Italian and German agents. The fascist and nazi foreign press maintains close relations with the consulates of these surly capitals, and the obvious power of this press to intimidate advertisers and others of the foreign colonies should not be ignored.

Such Investigations Periodic Necessitates
The fascist influence is so strong in cooperation with the fascist foreign press in this country that in some quarters it is highly unpopular to advocate Americanism above Italian fascism and to resent the anti-American propaganda of the duce. All this goes on in the United States and would seem to deserve no less attention from Mr. Dies' committee when the infiltration of the Moscow influence in the WPA, whose distinguished executive, Mr. Aubrey Williams, recently exhorted the Workers' Alliance, a group with a strong communist membership, to "keep your friends in power."

Such investigations as Mr. Dies has been conducting are necessary from time to time to expose to American view and remedial indignation offenses against the country's hospitality which are inevitable under the American system. Merely to expose the conspiracies, however, and to prosecute under the very liberal laws of the country those who overstep the bounds of democratic tolerance is to keep the evils in check. Mr. Dies' work is not half done. It is an unpleasant job which many able congressmen would shrink, for there is no surer way to incur the fierce and scurilous wrath of the anti-Americans and the charge of un-Americanism than by exposing anti-American conspiracies.

New London Squad Will Meet Neenah Rockets Saturday

Stacy May Shift Players to Strengthen Forward Wall

New London—A green squad of New London High school glidders learned a lot in a 39 to 9 defeat at the hands of West Green Bay at Green Bay last week and an enlightened team will oppose the Neenah Rockets in the conference opener at Neenah Saturday afternoon.

With an entirely new front wall this year, with the exception of Paul Knapstein, tackle, Coach D. N. Stacy is contemplating some changes in the starting lineup as the result of last week's battle. Doug Hanson and Bernard Freiburger probably will be switched from ends to elsewhere, according to Stacy, and the general strength of the line will need to be reinforced.

Except for lack of polish, and precision which comes with practice and experience, the backfield, performed up to expectations. Bon Huzzar, left half back, may be moved forward on the defense to back up the front line.

Guard Shows Power Coach Stacy substituted about 20 men during the course of the Green Bay game and gave every one of the squad a workout. Wallace Hammerberg, lanky junior guard, was credited with a particularly fine performance.

The Red and White came out of the test fray with no serious injuries but a lot of sore spots indicating a little softness. Huzzar probably received the most damage with a bruising kick in the mouth.

Drills, workouts and scrimmages were pushed doubly hard by Coach Stacy and Charlesworth the latter part of last week and the job of turning out a winning eleven will continue every afternoon this week in preparation for Neenah.

SENATOR DUFFY COULD QUIT

In the November election Senator Duffy will only find himself in the way. He cannot do better than third place against Ekern and Wiley, but he can prevent as fine a race as our records will show between the best candidate the Republicans have put up in 12 years and a Progressive of outstanding ability and character.

Mr. Duffy was carried into office on a tidal wave that swept everything before it. It elected quite a number of men who have signally failed to live up to the expectations of the people. Mr. Duffy is one of them.

Down in Illinois it elected a senator by the name of Diedrich. Six years of service by Mr. Diedrich left his state so cold to his overtures for support that he was sensible enough to withdraw entirely. The same tidal wave put Pope of Idaho in the senate. While Mr. Pope had to carry the handicap of the President's indorsement in the recent primary he was probably defeated more because his people felt that in the senate he was beyond his depth.

It is not unfair to Mr. Duffy to say that he has made no impression upon the people of Wisconsin or elsewhere for either ability or suitability for a statesman's shoes. His service is distinguished only by the way he lapsed in the calf path trod by Jim Farley. His mind was so completely subservient to the administration that he forgot Wisconsin's extensive dairying interests and actually voted for the bill that permits southern planters, in effect and operation, to take government money for changing from cotton raisers to dairy herd raisers, a blunder of such great proportions that Senator LaFollette who voted against the same bill must have gasped to hear a "yea" come from Wisconsin.

While the existence of three principal tickets in our election this fall will be a plain help to Governor LaFollette it is likely to be just as plain a drag on Mr. Ekern. Mr. LaFollette has been a great vote getter. Some thousands of people in this state certainly vote for him who are rather chary of some of his political ideas. They like him personally and trust his sincerity. Mr. Ekern, who would be a top-notch candidate on any ticket, has, for some unaccountable reason not been a great vote getter. Since it is altogether reasonable that far more than half of the Duffy votes would go to Mr. Ekern Mr. Duffy becomes a mere stumbling block to someone else without being able to help himself.

We have heard a great deal in the last few years about principle. If Wisconsin's junior senator is interested so deeply in the principles of liberalism he must concede that persons should count as nothing when ideas are at stake.

But, of course, there are different sorts of principles. One of the most prominent in public life is to hang on to the finish however dark the prospect and hope for the best.

FOND DU LAC PAYS THROUGH THE NOSE

Judge Van Pelt at Fond du Lac has suggested to the County Board there that an appropriation of $14,000 should immediately be made as a suitable sum to cover a grand jury investigation which he is ordering.

Evidence has been submitted before the judge indicating that gambling, vice and kindred racketeers hold the county in their grip. There, as elsewhere, the racketeers, it is alleged, have their hands on the district attorney and the sheriff. Citizens are up in arms at the outlaws but claim they can do nothing without the assistance of these officers.

The citizens have not clearly understood the situation.

It is true that down at Waukesha a sheriff was convicted of malfeasance because he knew of wholesale gambling and made no effort to stop it. It is true that the law makes it one of the duties of the sheriff to arrest such wrongdoers. It is true that a sheriff who has sold himself to the gambling interests either for money directly or for the votes they buy for him is a very hurtful obstruction to law enforcement.

But it is not true that a sheriff is entirely essential provided other ordinary conditions exist.

The district attorney is at least twenty times as important as the sheriff in law enforcement. A district attorney who is asleep or dishonest can thwart a dependable sheriff and destroy the effect of his work. But a sheriff who is doing his level best to serve racketeering interests cannot spike efforts of a district attorney who is onto himself and the ropes.

The district attorney is the key pin, the keystone, and the whole works in law enforcement. In all practical matters the sheriff takes orders although he should know enough to act when he sees wrong-doing.

At a great many populous places in the state the people find that after electing prosecutors and sheriffs and paying them splendid salaries ranging from five to fifteen thousand dollars a year, many sheriffs receiving the latter amount, that gambling interests with a pot of gold and promises to garner thousands of votes for them have literally outbid the people and effectively taken over these officers.

And then the music and the expense begin. Grand juries are summoned. The expense to the county mounts. Special prosecutors must be appointed. The expense to the county mounts again. Trials must be had. The expense to the taxpayers keeps climbing.

And all because the people didn't have an aggressive prosecutor but drank down a lot of weepy stories told by racketeers in order to get votes for their favorite candidate.

RUSSIA LOOKS FOR A BIT TO EAT

Russian leaders and its kept press never showed so much war spirit as they have since they found that they probably won't have to go to the front to save Czechoslovakia.

Moscow claims that it stood ready and willing at all times to fulfill its treaty with the Czechs but that France abandoned Prague.

If the Russians have all the strength they pretend and all the courage they exhibit shooting men in the back in a cellar surely with 150 million people they would have no difficulty dispatching the Germans, less than half in number.

But Prague does not sustain the Russian claim, grown to generous size since her safety is assured.

We quote from the text of the Czech prime minister in the statement he issued to his people reviewing the entire situation:

"Inasmuch as Russia was willing to come to our help only on condition that France came first and moreover only after the League of Nations should have determined that Czechoslovakia was attacked and that Germany was the aggressor, we found ourselves facing a threat of war, menacing not only the state, but associated nations as a whole."

Russia's treaty with the Czechs only promises her assistance in collaboration with France and the two together only agree to help the Czechs resist an "unprovoked" attack.

For Russia, under the circumstances existing in central Europe, to suggest sufficient delay until the League of Nations, unable to even win a snail race, should investigate and determine who was the aggressor, was a particularly cowardly retreat, passing all technicalities ever used before.

Here we see how each dictator, Communist as well as Fascist, swells out his chest and pounds it with his fist as soon as he feels fairly safe. The statement of the Russian government, of its leaders and its puppet press, is primarily for the Russian people that they may understand how perfidious is the world but how pure their own land.

A ONE-SIDED LAW

Judge Wilkerson's direction made in the attempt to compromise the differences that have suspended operation of the electric railway running from Milwaukee to Chicago, and which apparently does not come within the terms of the general railway act which prevents strikes until the controversy is inquired into, was only, in fact, emphasizing again the crudity of the Wagner law.

It appears now that one of the major reasons for discussion is a controversy between two different unions.

Meanwhile about 2,000 men are out of work and, as Judge Wilkerson noted, the affairs of the road are sinking so low they may never have any work again.

Some day, if the people hanker to create monuments to commemorate their most clumsy actions, the Wagner law, for its obvious omissions, may be given the prize.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

AN OLD SONG

We look back fondly to our yesterdays. And try to capture in our feeble prose Some of its beauty. . . In the leafy ways Of that small town we walked with our first beau.

And at the ice-cream social, dressed in white Buruffled organdy, we heard the strain Of "Alexander's Ragtime Band" one night. And were enchanted by its glad refrain.

With what serenity the moon looked down Upon the green lawn of the paragon. The trees were friendly in our little town. And under them were folks of every age Listening to home talent, as they sang The newest song. . . The melody was grand. But lovely as the notes were as they rang. The greatest prize came to the Homelown Band.

We hear the melodies ring out once more. Old songs are sung again, and we return In dreams to find an open, vine-clad door. And friends of long ago, for whom we yearn. A strain of music brings back flying feet And a dear voice that we remember yet. And all the peace and beauty of Main Street In that dear village we cannot forget. (Copyright, 1938)

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

(Mr. Harrison, anaching some vacation, is serving as his own "guest columnist" by reprinting some of the stories out of his newspaper past—Editor).

New York—Almost any day now I'll start wondering and worrying about that man who comes inevitably to the Yankee Stadium to win fame as the First Yellow-in-Line-For-Bleacher-Seats at the World's Series. If it isn't one thing, it's another.

Why do people have to be like that? Or am I losing my sense of humor?

MAN AT WORK: The House Detective. He is the big fellow you see in all the New York hotels standing around the lobby giving everybody dirty looks.

Some times he wears a slouch hat, which is his idea of disguising himself like a guest; but don't let it fool you. With a few days' practice you can spot a house detective as far as you can see his feet.

He doesn't have much to do. Even if there should be a serious disturbance in the hotel, he isn't likely to arrest a disturber or even toss him out on his ear. Disturbers are fussy about such things. The ousted party might sue for damages, which means unpleasant publicity. The house detective's chore is to mollify rather than mortify.

He is sort of an Ace in the Hole for hotels—a good fellow to have around just in case. He may knock on the door of your room if you are too hilarious late at night, but about as far as he will go is to refer subtly to your conduct and suggest that while it doesn't bother him in the least, there are a couple of cranky guests on the same floor who can't appreciate "Sweet Adeline" at 3 o'clock in the morning.

His most useful purpose is to spot undesirable characters who might be in the lobby. An experienced house detective knows the faces of most of the vultures who prey on hotel guests, and he has merely to tell them to get out. They can take a hint.

Women who drop handkerchiefs for prosperous-looking gentlemen guests to retrieve are one of the house detective's biggest worries. He has to be all-fired sure he is right before he dare suggest that she depart. Women get indignant—even women who play drop-the-handkerchief.

Many a man has wandered absent-mindedly across a hotel lobby and wound up with either a wife or blackmailer—or a black eye.

The house detective does his best to protect the hotel guests from designing city slickers, male and female. Most of the time he succeeds. He gets no applause, because the very nature of his job demands anonymity.

The sweetest bouquet you can hand him is to point out that New York hotels enjoy today a better reputation for sedate and orderly conduct than they have for a long, long time.

A CLIP RACKET that has the management of a large East Side hotel worried invokes a new technique.

A man will be standing alone at the bar drinking. He is a guest of the hotel. About the time he is what we used to refer to as "three sheets in the wind," a woman suddenly enters. She walks directly over to the man, touches him on the arm, and says: "I've had enough. Lets get out of here."

The man, his head fogged with grog, looks up and sees an attractive woman. He has never seen her before, but the confident manner in which she assumes charge of the situation lulls him into the belief that she is a friend. Nine times out of ten he pays his check and permits the woman to lead him from the barroom.

She hurries him into a taxicab. The adventure ends—generally in another saloon—with the man being slugged and robbed.

This has happened several times, with the hotel being unable to stop it. There is always the chance that the woman may be the man's wife or sister; and if the bartender questioned her actions she might conceivably sue the hotel for damages. On the other hand, the man who is robbed is in a position to sue the hotel. It's a very sad state of affairs. The moral is not to get bloated. (Copyright, 1938)

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Monday, Sept. 24, 1928

James Courtney, a resident of Neenah the previous 40 years and one of the city's leading grocers for the previous 25 years had disposed of his business and was to leave Tuesday morning for Long Beach, Calif. The business was purchased by Spencer Payne, who was to continue operating the grocery store on E. Wisconsin avenue.

B. J. Rohan, superintendent of schools, was to attend the annual conference of city superintendents in the capitol building at Madison Sept. 27. Mr. Rohan was to give a committee report on "Cumulative Records."

The business staff for the Kaukauna High school yearbook was announced Friday by Richard Ferguson, business manager. Luke Van Lieshout was appointed advertising manager and Myron Eber as assistant advertising manager. Marion Hagman was selected circulation manager with Beatrice Biseix and Robert Main as assistants.

25 YEARS AGO

Monday, Sept. 29, 1913

Profits of the Fox River Valley fair that year amounted to $652.62 though the premiums were $200 more than the previous year. Total paid attendance was 12,620.

The block signal installed on the corner of College avenue and Oneida street and the corner of Drew and North streets by the Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power company for the purpose of avoiding a delay in waiting for the Kaukauna car was put into use Saturday afternoon for the first time.

Another addition was to be made to the rapidly growing plant of the Graef Manufacturing company, a new 56 by 60 building being erected on the site of the original mill.

Gustave Keller that morning received his commission as postmaster in this city. He was to take office Oct. 1.

HOW TO BEAT THE RACES

Miss June Marks, 28-year-old manager of a hosiery store at Kenosha, Wis., went to Chicago to see the horse races. In eight races she picked eight horses that had "pretty names." All eight horses won. Miss Marks, having bet on seven of them, collected $3,144 for the afternoon.

Word of that being spread around, Miss Marks was besieged by friends and others who thought she had discovered an unbeatable "system." So, obligingly, she picked eight more horses with pretty names in the next day's races. She didn't bet on them, but several thousand other people did. And not one of those eight horses ran first.

Now, many superstitious gamblers, still convinced that Miss Marks has a "system" to beat the races, believe that it's good only when she plays it herself. Well, she does have a "system," and it absolutely can't fail if she sticks to it. Here it is, in her own words: "I'll never bet on another horse as long as I live."—New York World Telegram.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—The pathetic thing about this Czechoslovakia business is that if the Nazis move in on Sudeten Germany it won't solve the difficulty or end the trouble.

That is the estimate of competent authorities on European affairs here, and is the view of historians, too.

For more than a thousand years the Sudeten mountains have been the barrier separating the eastward moving Germans and westward moving Slavs. At that point the two races have ground together like huge millstones, fighting, trading, marrying and fighting again. Most Czechs have a touch of Teutonic blood and most Sudeten Germans a trace of Slav.

This ring of mountains separates Germany and Austria from that end of Czechoslovakia which jutts deeply into Germany like a thick peninsula. Like the rugged Pyrenees between France and Spain, the Sudeten mountains form one of the few natural barriers between national groups. What Herr Hitler seems disposed to do is to detach from Czechoslovakia a narrow strip of the mountain slope on the Bohemian side of the range, across the divide from Germany.

No Solution In Separation

R. W. Seton-Watson, writing in the current issue of "Foreign Affairs," says: "The detachment of these (mountains) from Czechoslovakia would have left unsolved the two main difficulties: that the major part of the land inside the present boundaries is inseparably bound by geographical and economic ties with central Bohemia, and that no human ingenuity has hitherto availed to draw a possible ethnographic line between German and Czech."

Seton-Watson's article, is pro-Czech, but his view on this is shared widely here.

The highly-industrialized Sudeten region has had its principal outlet into the Bohemian region into which the Sudeten mountain valleys drain. In times past this same region has traded actively with Germany, across the mountains. It has enjoyed a flood of tourist traffic from Germany to the once popular Bohemian resort.

The combination of the 1929 depression and adoption of the German economic policy shriveled German-Czechoslovak trade to a fourth of its earlier level. The tourist travel dropped to nothing when Germans were prohibited from taking any holiday money across the border. The German section of Bohemia—the troubled Sudeten region—was harder hit, as a result, than the Czechs.

The Economic Angle

This adds a new angle to the proposed merger. Sudeten Germans feel they would do better economically if blanketed into the German economic system than by being shut out of it. The economic question in this case is considered as important as the racial, although far less useful to Hitler in dramatizing the issue.

But the problem of minorities would not be solved. In the Sudeten section, along with the 3,500,000 Germans, are 400,000 Czechs who would be forced widely nilly under the German arm. In turn, 700,000 Germans would be left in that part of Bohemia which is predominantly Czech.

Of course nobody here, or presumably in Europe, is fooled into believing that Hitler's sympathy for the Sudeten Germans is his only reason for wanting to move in. If one is to believe his autobiography, he wants the raw material resources of Czechoslovakia, as well as the reader access this conquest would give him to the rich farming sections of Hungary, the oil fields of Rumania, and the outlet to the East.

Strangely enough, in the same current issue of "Foreign Affairs" is an article by Herbert Feis, state department adviser on international economic affairs, desperately arguing that restoration of sensible trade would remove the need of a nation to get raw materials by conquest. But he doesn't seem overly hopeful that Hitler will be moved by it.

Ladies Aid Society in Meeting at Olson Home

Leeman — Mrs. Barnard Olson entertained the Ladies Aid society of the Lutheran church at her home Thursday afternoon. A social afternoon was spent. The devotional service was conducted by the Rev. A. Blom.

Mrs. Elma Lind, who spent a few days visiting relatives and friends here the first of the week, went to Appleton Thursday for a visit at the home of Mrs. Peter Lind before leaving for her home at Omro.

The Ladies Aid society of the Congregational church did not hold its regular meeting Wednesday as scheduled because high water covered the floor of the church basement.

Mrs. James Sayers received word recently of the death of her twin sister, Mrs. J. B. Greyson, at Nichols, Ga. Mrs. Sayers was unable to attend the funeral services of her sister.

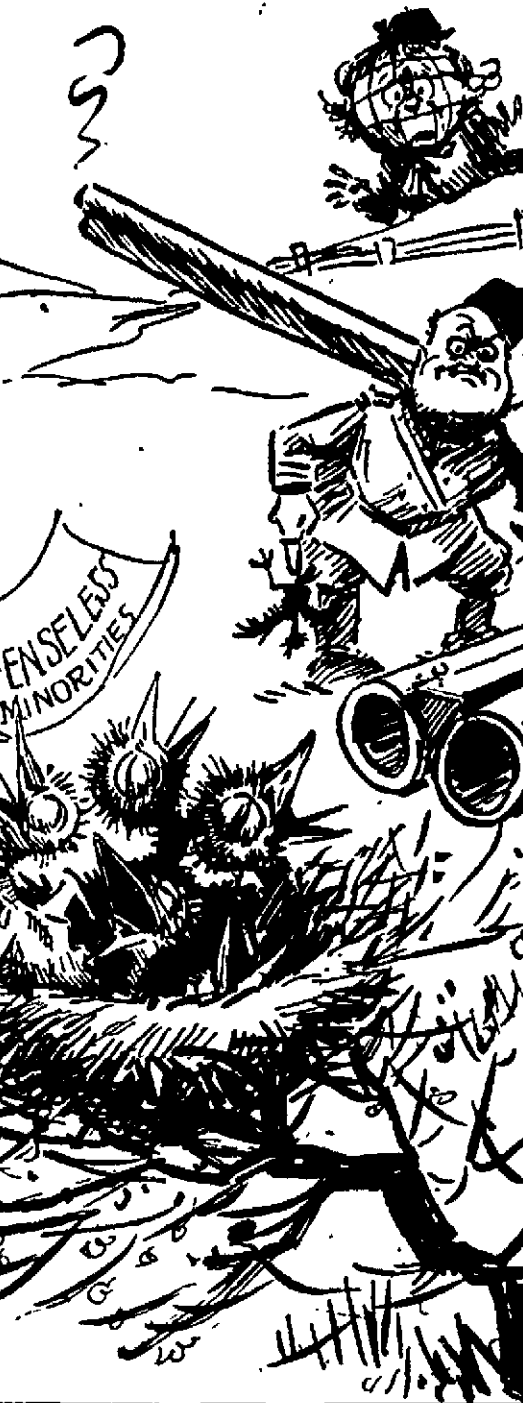

Announcements were received here of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Willard Bellin in Appleton on Tuesday. Mrs. Bellin formerly was Miss Oral Stevens of this place.

Farmers in the vicinity have resumed cutting corn and filling silos. The work was delayed by wet corn fields and rainy weather. Those living on the low lands are still unable to get into their fields while others are cutting entire fields by hand.

The high water which has flooded the road between Leeman and Nichols on Highway 156 has lowered considerably the last few days. The road was impassable for more than a week.

GREAT SPORTSMEN

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D. Noted Physician and Author

FOR LOCAL APPLICATION
In recent years it has been found that the local application of warm solution of epsom salt — four ounces to the pint of water — on dressings of gauze or absorbent cotton gives relief in sprains and local inflammation. The same wet dressings of magnesium sulphate solution are grateful for burns of both first (reddening) and second degree (blistering). Physicians sometimes inject magnesium sulphate hypodermically, or into the vein, or into the spinal canal, for its sedative effect.

The thought of taking a dose of salts is repugnant to many. There is an alternative remedy which is not at all unpleasant to take, even for a child. It is official in the U.S.P. as Liquor Magnesi Citratis, solution of magnesium citrate. This the druggist prepares and keeps cold in tightly stoppered twelve-ounce bottles. The liquid is effervescent and tastes like lemonade. A moderate dose as a laxative is one-half bottle. The whole bottle should be taken if preferred in divided doses every 15 or 20 minutes — where active catharsis is desired. Solution of magnesium citrate is the answer to the salts problem for hypersensitive patients and children; it is acceptable to the stomach. It should be purchased, a bottle at a time, from the neighborhood drugstore, only as it is needed.

The third saline laxative or cathartic I recommend is Compound Effervescent Powder U.S.P., commonly known as Seidlitz Powders. Seidlitz powders come in pairs—the blue paper contains sodium bicarbonate and Rochelle salt (potassium-sodium tartrate) — about two level teaspoonfuls of Rochelle salt; the white paper contains tartaric acid. Contents of blue paper should be dissolved in one-third glassful of water, and if desired a little orange or lemon syrup may be added; contents of white paper should be dissolved in another one-third glassful of water; then the two solutions mixed and taken before effervescence ceases. The colder the water the less the taste of the salts. One pair of Seidlitz powders is a moderate dose; sometimes a pair may be taken every three or four hours until free catharsis is induced. Seidlitz powders are more acceptable to the feverish or nauseated patient than ordinary salts.

Of the many saline laxative concoctions urged upon the public by their manufacturers, and especially of those containing not only dashes of alkali to correct the much touted but wholly imaginary "acidosis" and even such drugs as acetanilide, aspirin, phenacetine and other coaliter derivatives having nerve-numbing effects, we can only say the public gets a thoroughly bad deal from the federal and state authorities who permit the sale of such dangerous nostrums in such innocent guise. Takes Two To Defend Hand Right

BY ELY CULBERTSON

When one defender rises to the height of brilliance it is a bitter blow to have his partner play like a wooden Indian. That was West's fate in the following deal. Of course he could and did save his wound by delivering a few choice remarks after the hand was over, but these had no visible bearing on the score.

North, dealer.

The bidding:
North East South West
1 club Pass 1 diamond 1 heart
2 diamonds Pass 4 diamonds Pass
5 diamonds Pass Pass

West made his normal opening of the heart king and, when the dummy appeared, he could not be very sanguine about his chances to defeat the contract. South was marked with considerable strength in spades; indeed, could hardly hold less than both the ace and king to justify his four diamond jump bid. Since that was true, it appeared that only two tricks, in hearts, could be taken by the defenders unless West could get in a club ruff for the setting trick. This might be easier said than done. East could not possibly be put on lead in any suit except hearts and, since West himself had the four top honors, East would need the ten spot to serve as an entry. Still, since there was no other ground for hope, West at the second trick underbid his bid, maintaining heart honors. He was delighted to see East play the ten. But a moment later this delight changed to sheer horror when East, having recovered from the astonishment of holding the trick with the ten spot, blindly led back a spade! From that point on the defenders had no vital interest in the proceedings. The declarer drew trumps and spread the hand.

"Too bad, partner," East piped cheerfully. "There goes the rubber!"

"You're darned tootin', it's too bad!" West rasped. "I suppose it never entered that alleged brain of yours to return a club!"

"A club? Why, what good would that have done?"

"O, not much. I just would have ruffed it for the setting trick, that's all."

"Well, gee whiz, how could I tell you were void of clubs? I thought that you were trying to put me on lead so that I could lead a spade through declarer!"

"Then you must think I'm an awful dope!" West snorted. "Do you mean to say that I would jeopardize the rubber for the mere hope of an extra 100 points? If, by any miracle, I had had the ace-king of hearts and the ace or ace-queen of spades, how could I fail to lay down my three tricks, with a club suit like that facing me in dummy? And, anyway, I couldn't have had the ace of spades! Any player in the world except a partner of mine would have known that the only possible reason for my going to such length to put him on lead would be to get a club return!"

Personally, I must cast my vote for West. In fact, I think I'll sneak back to the polls and vote several times again for his irrefutable argument.

Get it over to Junior that Dickie Moore grooms himself regularly and is the healthier for doing so. If he dares to think Dickie a sissy, he'll come to with a black eye!

Get it over to Junior that Dickie Moore grooms himself regularly and is the healthier for doing so. If he dares to think Dickie a sissy, he'll come to with a black eye!

You needn't use the word "beauty" when you speak to the Junior of the house but you may and should use "grooming." Too many boys are under the illusion that just because they are of the male sex there is no need to keep fingers clean, skin clear and hair well cared for. To them a "he-man" never is annoyed with personal grooming.

This attitude is as wrong as mother's was when she didn't want Junior's curls to be cut off. The young man of the house needs to pay attention to his daily grooming just as the growing belle. And he will take to this necessary evil in a better frame of mind if you will explain to him that health prospers only if the body is cared for properly. It must be kept clean, rested and nourished. Otherwise he will find himself a little runt whom no girl is interested in.

Must Take Interest

Mother must not let Junior twist her about his little finger. Too frequently, indifferent health habits in youth have grown into serious mental or physical disturbances as a boy matures, and to avoid just that, it is better to get your son used to the idea that his favorite hero wasn't a sissy even if he did spend time grooming.

Clothes are important, too. A splendid bit of advice was culled from a new ancient book. It reads: "A boy who cares nothing for personal appearance, who does not appreciate beauty in others, is likely to develop into the man who will be slovenly in habits. . . . Give the boy a good suit of clothes if you wish him to be manly. An ill fitting, bad looking garment destroys a boy's respect for himself when he is with others. Like a man or woman, the boy respects himself, and will do much more honor to his parents, when he is nicely dressed in neatly fitting clothes."

He should be taught mouth hygiene and how to care for his skin. A "wet" wash leads to muddy, pimply skin and acne on the face quickly spreads to the scalp and other parts of the body. And an ailing scalp, or a dirty one, takes its toll in an early bald head!

Also destroy for him that masculine illusion that you can get your body clean without a brush or wash cloth! Men think that just getting under, or into, water is enough. The sooner they learn that plenty of soap, a wash cloth or brush, and some of that strength they boast, are needed to keep them socially acceptable, the better!

Women Try to Please but Don't Know Men's Wants

BY DOROTHY DIX

What every woman desires to know more than anything else in the world is what men really want in women. What type of women do they prefer? What qualities must a woman have to come up to their ideals? What should a woman do to please them? What do they expect of a woman as sweetheart and wife?

No matter what sort of a bluff the advanced of our sex may put up, in our hearts we know that the chief end of woman is to please man. For not only does her ability to get a husband depend upon her doing it, but also does her success in business. Virtually all of the pleasures and perquisites in life come to a woman through the favor of men, and so women would be glad enough to make themselves as men want them to be if they only knew what was expected of them.

But they don't know. With all their prying and probing, they have never been able even to get a glimpse of men's dream girl and hence are unable to copy her. All that they can do is to guess at what she is like, and mostly they seem to guess wrong.

So we have the pathetic spectacle of multitudes of women struggling blindly to come up to some man's heart's desire and failing because they have not the faintest notion of what he is yearning for. They don't even know what he wants them to look like, or what he wants them to do. Does he like 'em thick or thin, wild or tame, highbrow or lowbrow? It is the riddle no woman can uniddle.

Of late years, for instance, it has been the feminine conviction that so far as pulchritude went, men were committed to the living skeleton school of beauty and that the more a girl looked as if she were a tubercular case, the more she caught the masculine eye. But is this true? Do men really like angles better than luscious curves? Do they prefer an anemic, undernourished-looking girl to a girl who is strong and vigorous and corn fed?

Again, no women knows, but on the offchance that men do admire bones more than fat, women are going through agonies of starvation that qualify them for a martyr's crown and — grotesque thought! — perhaps their sufferings are all in vain and men like a plump armist better than a doctor's bill after all.

Then there is the matter of a girl's personality. Girls aren't petters or prudes, gay girls or Mamma's little helpers, quiet or vivacious because they were born that way. No, indeed. They are trying to be what they think men want them to be, and here again they are stumbling along in the dark. They don't know whether men like girls who can drink them under the table, or those who keep themselves on a pedestal.

They don't even know whether men prefer the girl who is quiet and restful, or the one who runs

For the next half-hour I kicked my heels in Amedee's little pantry, until, with a grinding of brakes, two big cars pulled up on the gravel sweep outside.

They came pouring into the hall, the commissaire in the lead and a stout, cheerful-looking man at his heels who seemed to pay a certain deference. Following them came the doctor, and after him a horde of men in uniform, men in plain clothes, men with cameras, men with attache-cases.

The commissaire bowed formally to me, but it was to Amedee he turned.

"The key of the room?" he demanded, and when the big fellow handed it over: "You, my friend, will accompany us upstairs, but you, on the other hand, Monsieur Lumsden, will remain here until I send for you."

I saw about half an hour I saw a uniformed gendarme coming down the stairs, and when he beckoned me to follow him back to the first floor, I obeyed with as good a grace as I could.

The windows of the bedroom were flung wide. The blankets had been decently drawn over the huddled shape on the bed, but as I pushed my way through the crowd of men who seemed to fill the room, I saw something black stretched on the floor beneath it, and paused on my way across the window, where the commissaire sat installed behind a table, to drop on one knee and see what it was.

Fingerprint

I was the big black dog, Lulu, and he lay on his back, glazed eyes half-closed. But as I laid a hand on his big chest, I felt the heart still faintly beating, and when I lifted his head I saw that, though he had a nasty crack over one eye, he was otherwise untouched.

"Great Scott!" I said wrathfully. "This poor brute is still alive, and new acquaintances no matter how hard I try. When I do go to parties I try to enjoy myself but the activities of my friends seem childish.

"I would much rather stay home and read a good book! My mother says that I too am an introvert, so, when I read your column tonight (I always do) I determined to join your COMPLIMENT CLUB if possible and see if I can help myself in any way."

How a Girl Thinks

"It may seem silly for a girl of my age to be so serious but it has been hard lately to see my friends go by without bothering to say 'hello'."

"I have been rather boyish heretofore with bobbed hair and mannish shirts. But last month I had a permanent wave, hoping it would help me with new friends."

"I'm not concerned with boys as much as my friends are. I like them as friends but I can't see why girls my age must act about boys in the way they do."

"When boys are mentioned I pretend to listen seriously. I agree with my friends, listen to their troubles, and even help the whole class with their homework, but when it comes to being involved in their good times well, no go!"

Read Ways to Compliment People

"I go to try to compliment people. Many psychoblog books say in no particular I don't use the right kind of compliments."

"I like the friends and most of my friends like me. But I'm never asked to go along with my friends unless they want to go and snark at the current basketball here."

"Please let me join your COMPLIMENT CLUB and if you have time, perhaps you could lend me some additional advice. I won't write any more as I'm sure it is important to the club members. I remain a devoted reader—Nona."

Nona's analytical mind has been a handicap to her life, since it has simply made her critical of her friends without having led to an effective solution to her problem.

In the middle of the class there was a letter or two at the king's court. But the letter was usually a brilliant and man who could act superbly and thus defuse stupidity.

We might roughly divide people into the simple, the smart, and the very smart. The very smart, like the king's fool, are skillful enough to act naturally in all situations, so they can be successful and happy in any group.

Where the Colleges Fail

One big fault with colleges today is the fact that too often they send out graduates who are smart but not smart enough to be natural. These smart graduates, therefore, may try to bludge their neighbors or feel too good for common things which have been basic in civilization's growth, as religion, marriage, etc.

Nona is a smart girl. To become very smart, however, she must go beyond the point of critical analysis of her associates. She must learn the twin arts of direct and indirect compliments.

Compliment your hostess on the delicious dinner. She will appreciate it greatly. Ask her for a recipe, however, and you've paid her an indirect compliment.

If you wish to employ additional indirect compliments, then ask people for advice. Praise their possessions, such as children, automobiles, cats or furniture. And be sure to attribute feminine charm and masculine strength to the two sexes!

SEATING GUESTS AT TABLE

Dear Mrs. Post: I'm unmarried and living alone. When I have five people in for dinner, two married couples and my own special beau, I put him at the end of the table opposite me or could any one think that I am considering him as a husband? If it were true, would your answer be different?

Answer: No matter what may or may not be in your mind, the only place to seat him is opposite you in order to avoid putting wives and husbands beside each other. Unless you seat a husband on each side of you, and a wife — not his own — on each side of him, a husband will be next to his wife. It can't come out any other way.

A BRIDE WISHES TO DRESS IN BLACK

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to be married soon and want to know if you think it's scandalous for me to have my wedding dress made of black lace. Although I admit to the novelty of this, the dress is very beautiful, and most becoming. I am going to carry yellow roses and my attendant is to be dressed in this same shade of yellow. Please say that you think it is all right.

Answer: I have to be unmercifully realistic, but really nothing is more unsuitable for a wedding dress than black, even though it be lace. To be sure, the superstition against black is foolish, as all superstitions are, but the lack of suitability remains.

A SITUATION THAT REQUIRES TACT

Dear Mrs. Post: I am told that my friends resent my habit of correcting my close friends and members of my family when they make mistakes. Recently one of my best friends became quite angry when I told her that she put the wrong accent on a word. Don't you think that she should have been grateful instead of annoyed? And besides, what am I to do if I have to pronounce the word that has just been mispronounced?

Answer: I'm sorry, but it's an unfortunately rude thing to do. Never correct any one except a younger member of your family, or unless you are asked for your advice. It is also best to avoid using a word immediately after some one has mispronounced it, but if you have to say it, then you should pronounce it the right way, but say it with as little emphasis as you can.

Opposes Use of Demerits To Check School Children

BY ANGELO PATRI

I am against the use of demerits to discipline school children. They are too easy for the irritated teacher to use, too handy a weapon for the angry teacher to wield, and too one-sided altogether. The child against whom they are charged rarely has a chance to defend himself. The bad marks go on his record and he is punished for them, usually twice, for parents regard demerits as disgraceful and defend themselves against the disgrace by punishing the child.

Demerits are a negative form of discipline. I believe that it is better to be positive in administration matters. Rate the pupil for his conduct. Give him a positive mark for his month's behavior and it will be nearer the truth, more accurate in measurement, and more acceptable by the pupil.

Every school child has an off day, or hour, or minute. Children are impulsive. A lad, freed from the confinement of the classroom, may jump, even shout, as he races down the hall to his next assignment. That is annoying. It disturbs the peace. That irritates the teacher in charge so that he longs to do something to annoy the pupil in return, and he gives him five demerits. Perhaps that is the only time in the pupil's career that he creates disorder; or it may be the only time in the month, or it may be the irresistible impulse of a nerve-strained child to relieve his aching nerves. It is not fair to blot his record and punish him severely under such conditions.

I can remember when I was in elementary school in the graduating class, and got five demerits for getting out of line. The boy in front of me had dropped his books and had to scramble for them before the teacher caught him and gave him demerits for such behavior. I stepped aside, slightly, to avoid stepping on his hands, and exposing his plight to the teacher. I got five demerits. I opened my mouth to speak in my defense. "And take five more for talking back," said the teacher. That was terrible. I could see my record, hitherto without blemish, marked with a red letter. I stamped my foot in helpless wrath. "And now you take a Zero and go right home and bring your father."

My mother was frightened. What had I done? It must be awful. I must have been outrageously bad to be sent home for father. Father listened gravely to my story, nodded his head, went to school and talked quietly to the principal. The principal talked quietly to him. I was sent back to my class and the demerits never appeared on my record. But the memory of this has stayed to this day.

Better wait a little and take the pupil's behavior in more sweeping units. Don't jump at incidents. Deal with them firmly and quietly and consider the measurement of his behavior later in the month. Be chary about sending home special reports of bad behavior. Don't send for parents. Don't write special delivery letters of complaint. Wait. Cool off. Children change from day to day. Deal with them philosophically and without vengeance. Never use lesson marks as disciplinary measures. Give behavior time, and

Old Gardener Says:

The crown imperial, or Fritillaria imperialis as the catalogues have it, comes very early in the spring and grows with amazing rapidity, shooting up in two or three weeks to a height of almost three feet. In some places the blooms are open by the middle of April, and tower at the top of tall stalks, their large, bell-shaped flowers carrying various shades of red. There is also a yellow crown imperial which is a very striking looking plant. The plant gets its name from the fact that a little crown of leaves appears just above the blossoms. No doubt garden makers who are familiar with the crown imperial will hasten to speak of its one drawback—the fact that it has a very peculiar if not distinctly disagreeable odor. This peculiarity of the Fritillaria imperialis should not be allowed to militate against its use, however, because the odor is not sufficient to cause any discomfort to the garden maker in the open air.

THE CLOUDED MOON

By MAX SALMARSH

THE CHARACTERS

Archie Lumsden, himself, visitor to the French Riviera.

Rene Geiss, master mind behind a murder plot.

Venner, one of Geiss's confederates, who objected to killing me.

Yesterday: The hotel servant comes out of Venner's room with bloody hands.

Chapter 31

Circumstantial Evidence

The door was locked. I sent Amedee for the key to the room next door, unlocked it, and entered Venner's room from the balcony. The door was directly before me, and a tumbled heap of blankets upon it showed me that for once Mr. Venner had overslept. But as I took a step forward, something brought me up with a jerk, and wave after wave of cold terror swept over me.

It was a human leg. With one stride I was beside the bed and had dragged aside the shrouding blankets. Blood was everywhere.

My nerve cracked. I made one bolt for the door, tore it open, wrestled with the lock of the ante-room, and flung through into the corridor, sending the tray crashing from Amedee's hands.

"What is it, monsieur?" he gasped.

"It's death," I said soberly. "Listen man; your patron has been murdered. I'm sorry for you, but you must come and see."

I gripped him by one shaking arm, dragged him into that dreadful darkened place, and showed him what lay there. Next minute we were both back in the corridor, staring at each other's gray faces.

"The police," I said. "You must telephone at once for them and a doctor, but first the door must be locked."

After he had locked the door and pocketed the key, I drew him into my room and gave him a pull from my flask.

Then I propelled him gently from the room, but as I turned to follow him, something caught my eye, and I halted sharply in my tracks. My room was small and bare; apart from the bed, a dresser, and a couple of chairs, the only furnishing was the somewhat lurid floral decoration of the walls, but now, as I took a step towards the door, my eye lighted on a peculiarly gaudy rose, half-hidden by the wooden head-board of the bed. Straight across it showed a long scratch of white, and as I looked more closely I saw the narrow slit of torn paper hanging from my tracks. It was a fresh scratch, and it seemed to me that it had been made by shifting the bed from its accustomed position.

I gave the bed an experimental shove, and something heavy fell with a muffled thud on the polished boards in a flash I was on my knees beside the bed, and next instant I held it in my hands—a foot-long roll of brown paper that held something heavy. I unrolled it carefully and found myself staring at a formidable-looking wrench.

whose end was clogged with dried blood.

I laid the grisly thing on the floor, still in its paper wrapping, sprang to the door, and shut and locked it; then I sat down on the edge of the bed and took my head between my hands. Here was Geiss's final effort, the murder that I should, as he had told the judge of instruction, inevitably commit. Here was the damning evidence that would, if it hadn't been for that single scratch on the wall-paper, infallibly have sent me to the guillotine; but somehow I didn't think that the weapon alone would be considered evidence enough. There must be something else, something to suggest a motive for the crime.

Framed

I tore open the drawers of the heavy walnut dresser and found them empty. I flung wide the doors of the hanging cupboard and found nothing. The bed was quickly examined, but it was equally unproductive, and there remained only my suitcase. I dragged it out, un-snapped the locks, and there, neatly tucked into the folds of a clean shirt, was a thick morocco wallet with a gold "V" stamped in one corner.

It was full of notes, English and French, of all denominations, but it was not its contents that worried me; I had to find some safe hiding place for it and the wrench—and find it quickly, for even now Amedee must be wondering at my absence.

I could not tell which of the other bedrooms were occupied, and I dared not take the risk of opening strange doors. There was only one solution—the loose tile in the corridor. I peered out cautiously, found no one in sight, and slipped wallet and grisly weapon into the friendly hole.

Amedee was emerging from the office as I came down the stairs.

"They are coming," said he. "The police chief himself and the police surgeon and the rest—He broke off, looking at me with a troubled face.

"Well," I said impatiently, "what's up, man?"

"Monsieur," he answered hesitantly, "I do not understand it! The first question they asked was if you were in the hotel."

"Oh, well," said I, "they doubtless wanted to be sure of having a reliable witness; but though I spoke cheerfully enough, I was conscious of a distinct uneasiness in the pit of the stomach.

My chief desire at the moment was to get some clothes on, for I was still sketchedly attired in bathing shorts and a damp towel, but I had a feeling that the farther I kept away from my room until the arrival of the police, the better, so

6 Persons Hurt in Traffic Accidents In Appleton Area

Three Automobile Crashes Over Weekend are Caused by Fog

Thick fog was blamed for three of eight traffic accidents which occurred in the Appleton area since last Friday night. The accidents caused injuries to six persons.

Mrs. Sophia Loehning, 72, 219 Martin street, Neenah, fractured her right leg and her daughter, Mrs. Lester Meyer of the same address had a hip injury and was cut and bruised in an auto crash just west of Royalton on Highway 54 about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Both were taken to Community hospital, New London.

The car in which they were riding, driven by Mr. Meyer, was in a collision involving a car driven by Joseph Gore, 80, Royalton. Mrs. Gore received lacerations on her forehead and hand. The Meyer car was going east and the Gore car west and making a left turn off the highway when the accident occurred, it was reported. Both drivers were unhurt but the machines were badly damaged.

Leg Injury

Mrs. Ernest Spoehr, route 1, Sugarbush, suffered a right leg injury when cars driven by her husband and Alvin H. Affeldt, route 1, Shiocton, collided in fog about 3:45 Sunday morning on Highway 76 about 5 1/2 miles northwest of Shiocton.

Spoehr was travelling west and Affeldt east when the collision occurred, according to Captain Charles Steidl, county traffic squad who investigated. Both cars were damaged.

Fog

Fog was blamed for a collision of cars driven by Lorin Gimberling, Weyauwega, and Earl Rasmussen, Waupaca, at the intersection of Highways 10 and 49 about 3 1/2 miles southwest of Weyauwega about midnight Saturday. Gimberling, who was returning from Janesville with a new car to replace one smashed a week ago, suffered a broken hand.

Another collision caused by fog and involving cars driven by Fred Marten, Fremont, and Corrin Mortenson, Ida, occurred a mile east of Fremont on Highway 80 about 2:30 this morning. Both machines, which sidwiped each other, were damaged but no one was injured.

Fined $50, Costs

Aloys Bayer, 725 Milwaukee street, Menasha, was fined $50 and costs with an alternative of 60 days in the Winnebago county jail by Judge S. J. Luchsinger at Oshkosh this morning following an accident involving Bayer's car at 1:45 yesterday afternoon on Winnebago County Trunk P near St. Mary's cemetery.

Bayer pleaded guilty of illegally passing a car. His driving license was suspended until proof of financial responsibility is filed with the secretary of state. The fine was not paid up to noon today. Bayer was going north and attempted to pass another car and sidwiped a machine being driven south by Clarence Peeters, Little Chute. The court was told. Peeters was cut about the forehead.

Two cars were damaged in a collision at 6:45 Saturday night on Highway 47 just south of the Appleton city limits. Machines involved were driven by Louis Long, 542 N. Clark street, who was going west, and Henry Kuchenbecker, 128 W. Doty avenue, Neenah, who was travelling east. Winnebago county traffic officers were told.

Head-on Collision

Cars driven by Mrs. Carl Hethorn, Escanaba, Mich., and Fred Hoekstra, Wittenberg, were damaged in a head-on collision on Highway 4 near the north end of New London at 9 o'clock Friday night. The collision occurred on the floodway bridge.

Mrs. Hethorn was going north and Hoekstra south. No one was injured.

In police court Saturday afternoon Alton Hethorn, who was riding in the Hethorn machine, pleaded guilty of drunkenness and was fined $5 and costs by Police Justice Fred J. Rogers. The fine was remitted after Hethorn paid $50 for damages to the Hoekstra machine.

Kaukauna Student Uses Trailer as College Room

Kaukauna — Lambert Van Roy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Van Roy, route 1, will have none of the troubles associated with room hunting at Ripon this week for he "carried" his room with him and the city of Ripon has given permission to park it in a vacant lot which the power and light company will furnish free of charge during the Ripon college term. Van Roy will be a senior at Ripon college this fall.

Two weeks ago when he was in Ripon seeking a place to park his trailer "room," the best the city could offer him was "the cow pound," a fenced off area on Silver Creek back of the brewery. The pound is a reminder of those days when livestock ran free in the streets and lost cows would be corralled by the constable and impounded until claimed. The cow pound failed to solve the problem of a trailer site for Van Roy because the ground was too soft and boggy but Mayor W. H. Barber assured him the city would find a site for him.

Has 123 Bee Colonies

Van Roy, who left for Ripon this morning, has as his hobby, avocation, and vocation, bees. 123 colonies of them on his father's farm, and he plans to major in chemistry courses at Ripon as he continues his experiment in perfecting a honey food product.

When most students, planning return to colleges, were selecting their clothes, books and college paraphernalia to pack into trunks and traveling bags, Van Roy was building his trailer room which is 16 feet, 6 inches long, 7 feet, 4 inches wide and 6 feet, four inches in height. It weighs 2680 pounds.

The "room" is finished in plywood and has heavy sheet metal on the outside. The steel frame is electrically welded and has an inch and a half of cotton insulation. A studio couch in the "room" opens into a double bed, the stove has a canopy top with a ventilator, there are folding tables, clothes closets, drawers for books, cupboards for dishes and food stuffs and the "room" is electrically wired. The trailer room is equipped with electric brakes.

Van Roy has attended Oshkosh Teachers college, Wayne University and Eastern Tech, Detroit, Mich.

Reckless Driver Fined $25, Costs

Lawrence Geiger, 605 Milwaukee street, Menasha, Pleads Guilty

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh—Lawrence Geiger, 605 Milwaukee street, Menasha, pleaded guilty of reckless driving and was fined $25 and costs with an alternative of 30 days on the county jail when he was arraigned before Judge S. J. Luchsinger in municipal court this morning.

Geiger was arrested on County Trunk P in the town of Menasha. Police said he was cutting in an out of traffic at a high rate of speed when he lost control of his car and crashed into the ditch.

Eric Fahrerkrug, 501 First street, Menasha, pleaded guilty and was fined $15 with an alternative of 20 days in the county jail for speeding across an intersection on County Trunk A at the state hospital just north of Oshkosh.

Peter Jorgenson, 211 W. Wisconsin avenue, Neenah, pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $1 and costs for parking on the wrong side of the street in Oshkosh. He was arrested Saturday by Oshkosh police.

Lions to Sponsor Navy Band Concert

Crack Organization Will Perform at Lawrence Chapel Oct. 10

The year 1937 added a bright and interesting chapter to the growing history of the achievements of the United States Navy band, which will be heard Oct. 10 at Lawrence Memorial chapel under the auspices of the Appleton Lions club. In that year, as a guest of the Canadian National exhibition, the band played an extended engagement in a foreign country and was widely acclaimed by press and public.

Twice daily, for two weeks, the band gave concerts in the magnificent band shell on the exhibition grounds, besides appearing in parades and pageants.

Among the tributes which appeared in the newspapers of Toronto were the following:

"There were brilliant everywhere, but the greatest thrill was the United States Navy band. Precision, energy, purpose, balance, rhythmic freedom, disciplined intensity, power, sweetness, imagination and sympathy are in every cadence of its music."

"What a joy to hear noble music so nobly played. The effect upon the ensemble of the rich red content is to give the music buoyancy that band music seldom has. Orchestral effects are better than those of an orchestra. Emotion takes a sea trip on a battleship when the United States Navy band paints it."

HEALTH QUERIES ANSWERED

Question: I am a sufferer with indigestion for more than two years. If I decide to take Chiropractic will it get me well?

Answer: Every intelligent person demands proof before he is willing to accept a new idea. Give him indisputable proof and he will be satisfied.

That's why Chiropractic is being so widely accepted. The patients right here in your own community is rather good proof.

Case record No. 60. Entered this Clinic complaining of pains in his stomach. He informed me that the usual methods were practiced on him before coming here with no possibility of relief and he was referred to this Clinic by his friend. An examination indicated a vertebra in the upper spinal column out of normal alignment. It was evident that any measures for the alleviation of the condition would be of little value unless the offending vertebra was adjusted back to normal. All other methods were promptly dropped and the defective spinal segment corrected. More rapidly than anticipated by the patient the stomach condition cleared up and he retained perfect health. We mention this one case whereby you may satisfy yourself that Chiropractic will do exactly what we claim for it. Last report on March 15 patient well satisfied, doing all his work and is enjoying the best of health. A spinal examination with the latest scientific instruments is necessary before we are able to say what can be done in your case. For your health appl. phone 4319W.

MODEST MAIDENS

"Well, Father always said we should put away something for a rainy day."

What's New at the Library

Three visits to the United States, first as the wife of an exchange professor and subsequently as a successful writer on leisure tours made Vera Brittain change her attitude toward Americans as she learned to understand them and the difference in the national outlook after the depression, the growing awareness of European situations, increasing sense of social responsibility. This change in her attitude is recorded in her new book, "Thrice a Stranger," which is among the new volumes received at Appleton Public library last week.

Laying bare the whole web of international intrigue being wrapped around the countries to the south of the United States, Carleton Beals in "The Coming Struggle for Latin America" tells the story of the struggle for the rich resources of the 20 Hispanic countries, the drive for trade, for control of raw materials, for military, naval and aerial advantage. He discussed the continent-wide Fascist propaganda and all the forces which menace the future peace of the New World and the future security of the United States. His book is based on documented facts, personal investigation and first hand study and travel in Latin America.

"From Hoopskirts to Nudity" is the startling title of a new book by Carrie A. Hall who spent 50 years in designing and making more than 20,000 dresses. The book gives a review of fashions and their relation to life and living over the last 70 years, a large number of photographs making it a pictorial panorama. That the parade of changing styles has meaning is the thesis of the book. The rising skirt level, the redoubtable bustle, the hoop skirt, mannish tailored suit and trend toward nudity are represented as manifestations of a national spirit that is ever changing.

Two cook books are among the latest shipment at the library. "Olla Podrida" by Elinor Burt is a veritable cook's tour of Spanish kitchen evolved from a long study of Latin-American and Spanish cooking begun by the author as an instructor of home economics in California. The dishes have been carefully chosen for their tastiness and the directions for making them have been given in simple, accurate form. "The Stag at Ease" by Marion Squire consists of the culinary preferences of a number of distinguished male citizens of the world including President Roosevelt, Robert Benchley, Roark Bradford, Frank Buck, Irvin S. Cobb, Jack Dempsey, Sigmund Spaeth, Mark Sullivan, Carl Sandburg, Booth Tarkington and others.

Pieces which appeared serially in the columns of the New Yorker are gathered together under the title, "My Sister Eileen" by Ruth Kenney, giving a picture of fast-growing characters and natures of two roving Irish lassies from the beginning with the days of peanuts and the silent movies, debating teams and bird hunts, girls' camps and Easter eggs, the book progresses through first lessons in being a waitress, a girl reporter interviewing Randolph Churchill and the migration to New York where the two girls rented an apartment.

Six concise steps toward restful sleep are presented in "You Can Sleep Well" by Edmund Jacobson. He discusses the general problem of relaxation and covers such important topics as drugs, dreams and child's sleep. It is a book not only for the insomniac but for the normal person who wants to get the most out of sleep.

Why some children have rickets and why whole populations are subject to pellagra are answered in "Have You Had Your Vitamins"

WISCONSIN WEATHER

Cloudy, thundershowers east and south portion this afternoon or tonight; cooler tonight northwest portion; considerable cloudiness and cooler Tuesday.

GENERAL WEATHER

A low pressure area which now overlies northern Lake Superior is attended by unsettled weather this morning over the upper lakes and upper Mississippi valley, with light rain falling over western Lake Superior and eastern Minnesota. However, fair weather is general this morning over nearly all other sections of the country.

Moderate temperatures continue this morning over most of the country, but maxima of 90 degrees or above were reported yesterday from many stations in the plains states.

Showers are expected in this section this afternoon or tonight, followed by considerable cloudiness and cooler Tuesday.

by Harry N. Holmes. It includes a comprehensive and accurate table giving the food source and function of each of the important vitamins.

Because of the difficulties encountered by the engineers in tunnel construction and the skill and ingenuity, often heroic, required in the work, the story of "Tunnels" by Archibald Black makes interesting reading. It describes the making of the great railroad tunnels as well as the outstanding subway systems, water supply, highway and irrigation tunnels, and contains many unusual photographs of men at work showing various methods used.

If you have envied those women who sit around at club meetings or other gatherings and knit unconcernedly while listening to a speech or carrying on a conversation, get "Mary Thomas's Knitting Book" and become expert at the art of "knit two, purl two" yourself. It is helpful to both beginners who are puzzled by complicated directions in pattern books and to experts who will be able to go on to newer and more inventive fields of knitting. A brief history of knitting is given and the book explains such common things as implements, yarns, gauge, and positions of hands in knitting.

Methods of mining gold, silver, copper, iron, lead, coal, oil, sulphur and precious stones are described in "All About Mining" by Wallace H. Whitcombe. The geological historical and economic background of the earth's treasures are sketched also.

Hollywood — Idol Chatter: Hedy Lamarr would be even more glamorous if she could correct that slouching walk. I like that up-under-the-eyebrows glance with which Katie Hepburn expresses her derision. Best off-screen comedy of the week: Oliver Hardy's impression of a bubble-dance. There's an absolute rule in Hollywood that all children appearing before the cameras must be physically perfect; make-up has to do the trick when invalids or cripples are needed.

First prize for phenomenal luck stories goes to Walter Catlett for his claim that he once embarked in Liverpool with only $35, but on every ship activity, and landed in New York with $30,000. Cited for the Red Badge of Courage: Connie Bennett — for daring to wear a swim suit in her current picture. No sight in Hollywood quite so touching as an ex-star trying to hide his frayed shirt-cuffs. Thumbail description of Sally Rand: fan-tastic. And why wouldn't it be good slang-usage to call our scenario writers "script-teasers?"

In spite of that too-perfect hair, Gene Raymond is really one of the finest all-around athletes in Hollywood. An honorary degree to Glenn Farrell for her remark that good acting depends less on what an actor does before the camera than on what he doesn't do. The one time Gary Cooper wears an insufferable air of superiority is when he rolls a cigarette. Getting personal: why doesn't someone warn Janet Gaynor about wearing too much lip-stick?

The one type of movie in which you never see "anything to offend the most fastidious" is the horse opera, which depends primarily on adolescent approval. Buck Jones has always made it an absolute rule never to play a torrid love scene to allow one in his pictures. He neither drinks nor smokes before the cameras. The same "shalt nots" have governed the success of Bill "Hopalong" Boyd and Ken Maynard. And Horse-opera scripts are so free from smut and double-meanings that the Hays office has learned to pass them with only a casual glance. It seems to me that the phenomenal success of such pictures should do a lot to quiet fears about the younger generation.

About two years ago a girl named Terry Raye drove out to California in a battered jalopee — camping beside the road at night because she lacked the money to sleep in a hotel. In Hollywood, she landed a job selling candy in a Boulevard fanolite shop. The other day — as Ellen Drew, acclaimed by every critic as the brightest star prospect of 1938 — she left Filmville for a visit to her family in Englewood, Illinois. She traveled in the bedroom suite of an extra-fare streamliner and the red cap had to use a truck to handle her luggage. How, in the face of a transition like that, does Hollywood expect to convince America's ambitious girls that the Cinderella-story is passe?

Reflecting on the reception that will undoubtedly be given Ellen on her trip, I'm reminded of an untold anecdote about Shirley Temple's recent jaunt through the East and the hysteria that greeted her. In Chicago, her appearance in the big Marshall Field store was the signal for a near riot. Five minutes later, store detectives, in desperation, begged Mrs. Temple to get her famous spring-off out of the place. The clerks had deserted their counters in order to see Shirley — and hundreds of dollars worth of merchandise was being looted by shop-lifters!

Swiftest denizen of Hollywood (which is saying a lot) is Maxie Rosenbloom, the prize-fighter turned actor. During the production of "Women in the Wind," in which he plays an important bit, Director John Farrow has on several occasions

Adopt Resolutions Intended to Help HOLC Borrowers

Milwaukee — The Wisconsin Home Owners' Protective association, three-year old organization of persons having taken out HOLC mortgages, yesterday adopted three resolutions aimed at benefiting such borrowers.

One resolution condemned Wisconsin judges who follow a practice of appointing a receiver in foreclosure of homesteads, and favored a test case of such procedure in state supreme court. Another approved a petition, asking the governor and legislature to stop foreclosures until earning powers are restored.

The third asked the federal government to reduce interest on home loans, and stop foreclosures when home owners are on relief. This resolution complained of the "penalizing" of home owners on relief who do not receive a rental allowance.

Officers elected were: J. E. Kennedy, Madison, president; Louis Burchard, Milwaukee, first vice president; Herbert J. Yapp, Fond du Lac, second vice president; Miss George Malone, Racine, secretary; Miss Rosalyn Chinn, Kenosha, treasurer; Ben Marvin, Racine, state organizer; Dick Antaramian, Madison, Milwaukee, Kenosha, Racine, Fond du Lac, Green Bay and Sheboygan.

MOTORCYCLIST KILLED

Milwaukee — A head-on collision between a motorcycle and automobile was fatal yesterday to Roman Flayter, 32, the motorcyclist. Joseph Andrejat, driver of the car, received possible internal injuries and multiple lacerations.

sions tried to make up for lost time by shooting at night. When Maxie is in the scene, it never works. Mr. Rosenbloom muffs his lines repeatedly, finally screams, "I just can't remember after the sun goes down," and retires to a corner to sulk. Farrow still doesn't know whether it's a gag or a mental aberration — but he has admitted defeat.

When a member of the Catalina Tuna Club catches a marlin he announces his triumph by flying at the masthead of his boat a blue pennant depicting a swordfish. The other day, Dick Powell, swordfishing in the launch of a hired skipper, put back empty handed into Avalon harbor where Joan and six-year-old Norman were waiting aboard the Powell yacht. And the first thing that greeted him was a big bath towel fluttering at the mainmast of the yacht. Crudely painted on the towel were pictures of three mackerel and three sea bass. "What's the idea?" demanded Dick as he swarmed over the side. "Well," said Joan dryly, "I wanted the world to know that someone in this family can actually catch a fish!"

3 Drown and 3 Die in Traffic Accidents During Weekend

By the Associated Press

Weekend accidents claimed the lives of six persons in Wisconsin and upper Michigan. Three drowned and three were killed in traffic mishaps. The dead:

Berton Grinde, 41, Norway Grove, Wis.

Roman Flayter, 32, Milwaukee.

Mrs. Philip Anderson, 30, Chicago.

Janecarol Kahn, 3, Tomahawk.

Harold McCabe, 29, DePere.

John Nylund, 55, Crystal Falls, Mich.

Flayter, a motorcyclist, was killed in a head-on collision with an automobile at Milwaukee yesterday.

Mrs. Anderson drowned in the Fox river near Wilmet when a rowboat with five passengers capsized last night.

The Kahn child's body was found floating in the Wisconsin river at Tomahawk Saturday a few hours after she disappeared from her home.

When a motorboat was swept through open sluice gates of the DePere dam Saturday, McCabe drowned but his sister Irene, 26, donned a life jacket as the boat was pulled into the dam by a strong current, and reached shore safely.

Nylund was struck by an automobile while he was walking on Highway 69 near Iron River, Mich., yesterday.

Business Expanding in Federal Reserve Region

Chicago — George J. Schaller, president of the federal reserve bank of Chicago, said today that much more definite and numerous indications of expanding business activity have appeared in the seventh reserve district.

"Nevertheless, with few exceptions, volumes continue to be much below those of a year ago," Schaller said in the monthly survey of business conditions in the areas which includes most of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and Iowa.

"Among the noticeably favorable factors in the current situation," he said, "is that employment and pay rolls are rising."

The commission announced it has dismissed an investigation of the rates and practices of the municipal electric utility at River Falls, Pierce county, "because the utility has filed rates and rules that conform with legal requirements."

A hearing will be held at Tomahawk Oct. 10 on the Commonwealth Telephone company's plan to establish seasonal rates.

BOOK REVIEW 'The French Quarter' Is Robust History of New Orleans by Asbury

By Jean Wiley Thickens

"THE FRENCH QUARTER," by Herbert Asbury. Large cities possess personalities as distinct as the individuals who found and inhabit them. No one who has ever visited San Francisco can forget the view of San Francisco bay and the startling beauty of Twin Peaks beyond, nor the fragrance of Oriental incense which floats above the city on quiet days. Washington with its glistening monument, its majestic Lincoln memorial, its hordes of ubiquitous politicians with generous paunches and wide-brimmed hats, is certainly unique in its way. The most bizarre and colorful city of the North American continent however is New Orleans which for two centuries has enjoyed the reputation of being the modern Babylon of the Western hemisphere.

"The French Quarter" by Herbert Asbury is a stimulating and extremely thrilling record of the founding and growth of this extraordinary metropolis. The author describes his book as an informal history of New Orleans with particular reference to its colorful intrigues. Here murder, theft, rascals, piracy, gambling and duelling flourished undisturbed.

New Orleans was founded in 1717 by the Mississippi Land company which received its land grant from the French government. Its founder, the Sieur de Bienville, was a Frenchman who was sent out by Louis the 15th. He was accompanied by a group of settlers almost all of whom were offshoots of Parisian slums, who had flocked to the new world attracted by tall tales of vast wealth in gold, silver and pearls which could be acquired without effort.

Lou Grade Women

The women settlers were former inmates of France's House of Correction and at once it became evident to Bienville that the mob of unruly criminals would be useless for the task of clearing the wilderness, erecting buildings and draining the fever-infested swamps. When a worried priest suggested sending away all immoral females to improve the tone of the province, the governor of Louisiana Lamoignon, Cadillac, drew attention to the fact that there would then be no women in the settlement. The early history of Louisiana, and especially of New Orleans, was a record of failure, confusion, brawls, near-starvation for the settlers would not both-

Diplomacy Baffled by Hitler's Unconcern About Public Opinion

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—We in America, and people of many other lands, have grown up with unquestioning belief that in the long run public opinion would prevail, that world opinion was, in the end, the mightiest of all weapons.

That belief, which has been so completely accepted that modern politics and diplomacy have been quite generally controlled by it, has received a severe shock.

Hitler believes no such thing. In his complete indifference to world opinion, to what people think, to what history will say, we are seeing something new and baffling to the modern world.

Even the Kaiser's government, during the World war, went to great lengths to justify itself before world opinion. Its acts were ruthless but always the German government tried to convince the rest of the world that it was justified in them. Even when the Lusitania was submarined, the Germans tried desperately to justify it by insisting that this ship was a munitions carrier and not entitled to immunity. However bad their case, at least they tried to argue it and to convince the world that they were not as bad as might be thought.

Hitler wastes no time on such diversions. What the rest of the world thinks of his actions apparently does not enter into his calculations in any respect. His ally, Japan, has throughout its expansion in the far east kept a foreign-office spokesman busy apologizing to the rest of the world, explaining that Japan was the most peace-loving nation in the world and that for the rest of the world, a regrettable business hurt Japan more than China. They were so sorry, excuse it please.

Hitler will take any victory he can manage.

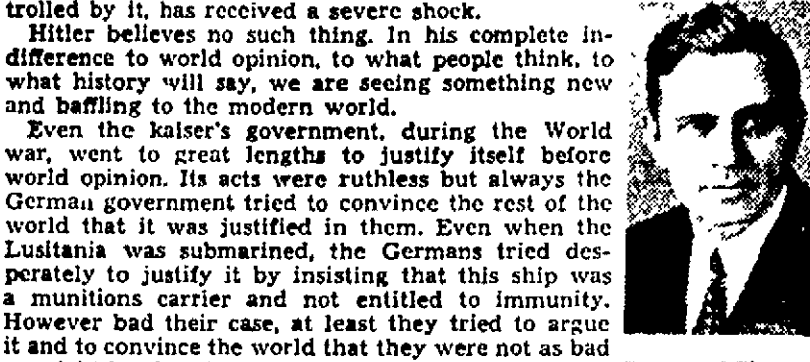

Hitler, on the contrary, seems impervious to outside opinion. Inside Germany he makes his own public opinion. Outside of Germany, public opinion can think what it pleases. That is no concern of Hitler's. If the rest of the world is outraged by his strong-arming of Czechoslovakia that is too bad for the rest of the world. Hitler is busy with what he wants to do, not with what others may think of it.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, it is explained, is building a record which he expects will convince the world that Britain sought by every means to preserve peace. Hitler must regard that as a waste of time. He will take what victories he can take and let the other side explain for history. Hitler will see that German history gives him full credit; as for other histories, they are not in his world.

Even The Soviets Try To Obtain Friendships

This is something that modern statesmen have not had to deal with before and they are obviously baffled. They feel deprived of a weapon which has been most powerful in the past, operating against rulers who had a decent respect for the opinions of mankind. Hitler's contempt for this sort of thing probably is part of his contempt for the whole democratic idea, which rests on the force of public opinion. To him it is a weak, sentimental, ineffective foundation of government and he has permitted none of it in Germany. He has substituted a kind of mass applause which is kept under complete control.

Not even in dealing with the Soviet Union have other nations encountered exactly this complete imperviousness to outside opinion that they find in Hitler. In many respects the Soviet Union has been indifferent to the opinion of capitalist countries, yet the Soviets joined the league, and adopted their paper constitution which has many of the blueprint essentials of de-

Arthur Larson and Clarence Trindud were selected to represent Wausau county at this meeting. Mr. Larson as a representative of the growers and Mr. Trindud representing the dealers. It is expected that the purchase will run into several hundred cars. County Agent Massey states there are conflicting reports on crops in this area. Many fields will have excellent production while others are badly damaged by excessive rains. The Jardine farms have approximately sixty acres of potatoes, which it is reported, will not be dug. Late blight is appearing in practically all fields, however the bright clear weather of this week has slowed its progress.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

Famous People of the Stage

—DAVID GARRICK

Some actors go on the stage and recite their lines as if they were "speaking a piece." They make the audience feel that the play they are seeing is not at all "real."

Good actors, however, have a free and easy way of speaking. They give the words of the play, but it seems they are taking part in events of life. The better they are, the more natural they are.

Two centuries ago the English stage was a place where the actors spoke their pieces, and let it go at that. People came to look at the plays, but did not go away with the feeling that much had been added to their lives.

One evening a crowd at Ipswich, a town not far from London, was given a special treat. A young man, whom no one had heard of before, acted a part in a play. Those who watched him forgot they were in a theater. The young actor's voice rose and fell; he seemed to mean every word he spoke.

The actor was David Garrick, and at the time he was 24 years of age. Soon afterward he appeared on a stage in London, taking the part of King Richard in one of Shakespeare's plays.

Young Garrick had come to London a few years before, in company with his tutor, Samuel Johnson. The tutor was to become the famous "Dr. Johnson," author of a dictionary and of many other books.

For a time Garrick did not know what use he should make of his life. He thought for a time he would become a lawyer, but the death of an uncle—a wine merchant—changed his mind. The young man became part owner of a "wine shop," but very soon he gave away more wine than he sold.

Among the customers, especially those who came for "free drinks," were actors. Garrick talked with them, and grew more and more interested in the stage. After he won his first success as an actor, he sold his share of the wine business to his partners. From that moment forward, his work was to give people worthwhile entertainment.

Night after night, Garrick appeared on the stage. His success was so great that people stopped going to other theaters, and flocked to the one where he was to appear, hoping to obtain at least standing room.

Garrick bought a share in a London theater, and became manager of a company. Yet he kept on with his work as an actor. His fame spread, and he journeyed to the continent of Europe to perform. Among those who hailed him as a great actor was the noted French writer, Voltaire.

One reason Garrick's success lasted all his life was his happy marriage with Eva Maria Violette. She had been a dancer before marriage, but now she turned her thoughts to the well being of her husband, and cheered him on his way. Garrick died in 1779, when he was not quite 72 years of age. He was honored by being buried in Westminster Abbey, and later his wife was buried beside him.

Menasha Hi Lose; Kaws, Neenah Tie

Electric City Team Scores in Second Quarter

ROCKET PASSES BAD

Kobussen and Giordana And Kettering are Outstanding

BY TOM MASTERSON
NEENAH—After trailing Kaukauna for nearly three quarters, Neenah High school's grid eleven forged over a touchdown in the closing minutes of the game to tie the Kaws, 6 to 6, in a Northwestern Wisconsin conference test here Saturday afternoon.

With the exception of Co-captain Warren Kettering, left halfback, who carried the ball three out of four times to monopolize most of the ground gaining, passed not too well, and punted above par, Neenah's running attack lacked power. It was evident, however, that the power was there, but it was latent Saturday. Opposing linemen sifted through the Rockets' forward wall and the interference given runners by their mates was none too good. Neenah gained only two first downs.

Defensively, Neenah showed up better. Although the Rockets permitted the Kaws eight first downs, most of them were during the Kaws only scoring threat, and it would have taken a more powerful team than the conference can boast of having to have stifled that sustained march. Then Neenah tightened.

Complete One Pass

Neenah's passing attack was nil. Attempting four passes, one was incomplete and the other three were intercepted.

Kaukauna threw everything it had in its one scoring chance. After that they resorted to defensive tactics and did right well for a comparatively inexperienced team. Their passing attack was slightly better than Neenah's, completing a toss for a gain of 22 yards and missing two others. The Kaws also gained five yards on a lateral.

Kaukauna had tough luck as far as penalties were concerned, drawing a total of 25 yards to Neenah's 15.

Bunker Scores

Neenah had to work hard for its touchdowns. Bunker, quarterback, lugging the ball over from the 6-inch line. Little more than half way through the final quarter, Lawrence Lambert, Neenah's pivot man, blocked Kobussen's punt with Kettering. Neenah's end, recovering on the 54-yard line, Kettering gained a half yard at center and Krueger, fullback, picked up a yard through the same hole. He fetched the ball within two yards of the goal line. Another plunge brought the piskin within inches of the marker but it was fourth down.

Kobussen punted from behind the goal. Kettering returning the ball to the 11-yard line after a 10-yard sprint. Krueger bucked center for five yards, and Kettering lunged to the 2-yard line. A fumble returned the ball to the 3-yard line, and then Kettering went to a first down on the 2-foot line. Krueger picked up a foot in two tries and then Bunker went over. Bunker missed an attempted drop kick for the extra point.

Kobussen, the Kaws' hard running fullback, and Giordana, halfback, shared offensive honors. Kobussen who got off some nice punts was about on a par with Kettering in that department.

Fumble Helps Kaws

A fumble of a bounding Kaukauna punt which was recovered by the Kaws on their own 38-yard line, a gain of 36 yards, paved the way for the first touchdown which came shortly after the second quarter opened. Kobussen plunked on a spinner to the 47 for a first down. He lugged the ball to mid-field, and Watson, right half, gained four yards on an off tackle plunge.

Kobussen cracked center to the 40 for another first down and then heaved a pass. Elmer, right end, to the 15 for still another first down. He picked up 21 yards through center. Giordana hit center for seven yards, placing the ball on the 51 yard line. Kobussen picked up 21 yards for a first down and then lugged a reverse to sneak over the goal. The attempted kick for the extra point was blocked.

Carroll Wins, Ripon Loses in Openers

Milwaukee — The football boys smiled kindly on Johnny Brown's debut as Carroll college coach Saturday and the Packers crushed the Milwaukee Teachers, 27-6, in the opening game of the season for both teams at Dwyer field.

The Packers got every conceivable kind of a break in the form of intercepted passes and recovered fumbles, but in justice to the men in Orange it must be said that they made practically all the breaks. They were aggressive and beat the Teachers to the punch. They tackled harder, blocked more viciously and were more alert on defense. Milwaukee made 12 first downs in six for Carroll, but Coach Herman Kluge's team could not match the visitors when it came to old-fashioned scrap.

Gabby Street Gets Gate After Double Victory Over Sox

St. Louis — (P) Gabby Street's dismissal as manager of the St. Louis Browns was viewed by fans today as the start of a "New deal" the American league team's owners were having talking about.

The "Old Sarge," a prominent baseball figure for 30 years, was told his services would not be needed after the present season following the Browns' double victory over the Chicago White Sox yesterday.

President Donald L. Barnes, in a brief statement, said Street had "served the club faithfully and I believe he has done as well with the club as anyone could have."

"But," he added, "I believe it is necessary to engage a new manager for 1939."

There was no indication of Street's successor.

Gabby appeared surprised by the announcement. He said the news was "unexpected."

The club now is in seventh place, three games ahead of the Philadelphia Athletics. Last year the Browns, under Rogers Hornsby and "Sunny Jim" Bottomley, finished a bad eighth by losing 108 games—a record.

MACKS SPLIT DOUBLE HEADER

Philadelphia—(P) The Athletics split a double-header with the Washington Senators yesterday, taking the first game 6 to 5 in 10 innings and losing the second, 5 to 4, in a seven inning contest called because of darkness.

Washington tied the first game in the eighth inning when Catcher Hal Wagner's throw wild to first. A single by Nick Etten, Athletic first baseman, after a double by Finney, sent Finney in with the A's winning run.

Washington came from behind to win the nightcap, scoring four runs in the seventh after the A's had put over three in the fifth and one in the sixth.

BROWNS CAPTURE TWO

St. Louis—(P) The St. Louis Browns closed their home season Sunday with an easy twin victory over the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 2 and 8 to 4.

In the first game Buck Newsom posted his nineteenth victory of the season, which is two more than his best previous hit league total in 1938. He had 15 defeats that year and has a similar number so far this season. Joe Kuhel's homer with one aboard in the eighth saved Chicago from a shutout.

Emil Bidilili, late of the Springfield, Ill., club of the Three-I league won his first major league game in the nightcap. Gerald Walker and George McQuinn hit home runs in the second game.

BY RANDY HAASE
ENASHA — Shawano High school served notice on the rest of the Northeastern Wisconsin conference that the Indians hope to repeat as conference football champions Saturday afternoon when they drubbed Menasha, 27 to 7, in the first conference game for both schools. Striking sharply at the opening of the game, the Indians shoved the Bluejays back and kept them on their heels throughout the tilt.

Bill Reed, a sophomore, performing behind a hard-charging line that swept Menasha's tacklers out of the way, sparked the Shawano victory with two touchdowns. He tossed a pass to Gottschalk for another and was deprived of a touchdown when a Shawano player was called for clipping. Brennan made that one up on the next play with a 40 yard dash for the final touchdown. In addition Reed made three of four attempts for placement for the extra points.

Score on Ten Plays

The Indians scored on 10 plays after the opening kickoff, starting from their own 44 yard line. Reed went around right end for 12 yards. Reed went around left end for 12 more yards. Brennan was stopped with 1 yard gain but Red went with right end and for 11 yards. Meifort picked up five and the Redskins made it first down on the 9 yard line. Two plays gained three yards; a shovel pass felt incomplete but Gottschalk took a touchdown pass on fourth down. Reed converted.

The Bluejays did not look like the same team which lost to Oshkosh the week before by a 7 to 6 score. The line failed to charge. The tacklers were bowled out by the Redskins and three and four men leading the interference. The backs could not stop the Shawano runners. Dan Stommel, Bluejay quarterback, received a broken wrist on the fifth play of the game and his loss probably affected the Menasha team. He will be out for the season.

It didn't take Shawano long to rack up its second touchdown either. Menasha received the second kickoff and failed to gain. Shawano ran off one first down but then was set back 15 yards for holding. Reed made the throw up with a 16 yard run on the next play. Ed Hill then smeared Reed for a three yard loss and Shawano punted to the 21. Grode fumbled on the second play and Shawano recovered on the 19 yard line.

With three men leading the interference, Reed swept around end for 19 yards and the second touchdown. He converted again.

Jays Show Life

The Bluejays showed a snarl of life in the third quarter after receiving the third kickoff. Grode returned the kickoff 17 yards. Paced by Ken DuCharme, who performed almost entirely on his own without the assistance of any blockers, the Menasha team made it first down on the Shawano 48. An offside penalty set them back but DuCharme tossed a pass to Hill for a first down on the 33. DuCharme went 19 yards on a spinner for another first down on the 14.

Shawano received a five yard penalty for too many time outs and the Bluejays had nine yards to the goal. DuCharme picked up two and DuCharme spun through the line for a short gain when the ball popped out of his hands. Landskron fell on it over the goal line for a touchdown. O'Brien converted from placekick.

The Bluejays may have had a chance then but Shawano immediately shoved them right back on their heels. They returned the kickoff to the 41 yard line. Behind interference that swept the linemen out of the way, Reed rounded end again and ran away from the 12 yard line for 59 yards and another touchdown. He converted again to make the score 21 to 7.

Menasha Rallies

Menasha rallied once more, stringing four first downs together to carry the ball 58 yards to the Shawano 11 before Reed intercepted a pass on the goal line to end the threat just before the close of the first half. In that march DuCharme contributed runs of 23 yards and 9 yards. O'Brien went 10 yards on one play and Drucks lugged the ball for several five-yard gains.

Shawano kicked the ball into the end zone at the opening of the second half but Drucks attempted to run the ball out, getting as far as the 8 yard line. The Bluejays were forced to punt from their end zone and Reed took the ball on the Bluejay 42. He wheeled, shifted, and sidestepped through the entire Menasha team as player after player took a shot at him and crossed the goal line. A clipping penalty nullified the gain and Shawano put the ball in play on the 40. Brennan, aid-

BELIEVE IT OR NOT—HERBER CATCHES A FORWARD PASS FOR TOUCHDOWN

The Green Bay Packers pulled one for the books yesterday when they sent Arnie Herber out for a pass and he scored. The usual role is for Herber to do the passing with Hutson or some of the other men in the scoring role. The above picture was taken just as Herber was hauling the ball into his arms and from the expression of Don Hutson's face, No. 14, he seems to be wondering who's stealing his stuff. Just behind Hutson is Mullineaux, another Packer end. No. 8 is Lawrence of the Chicago Cards while No. 12 is Tyler and No. 55 Robbins. Cecil Isbell, the Packer's new back and star of the college team in the All-Star game, tossed the pass to Herber. The Packers won by a 28 to 7 score.

Blues Trail in League Playoff

St. Paul Gains Second Victory on Airtight Hurling of Phelps

Kansas City — (P) Kansas City's Blues hope their final American association playoffs with St. Paul would follow the exact pattern of the Kansas City-Indianapolis semi-finals.

The Blues trailed Indianapolis two games to one after three contests, then swept three in a row to take the series. They trail the Saints two games to one after dropping yesterday's fray 5-2 before the airtight hurling of Ray Phelps.

Kansas City will enter tonight's play without rightfielder Bill Matheson, who crashed into the rightfield wall yesterday after making a sensational catch of George Stump's long drive. He injured his hip and spine.

ed by the same type of blocking that helped Reed, powered 40 yards for the touchdown. Drucks blocked Reed's attempt for the extra point.

Shawano collected a few more fairly long runs and several first downs but the Menasha defense stiffened occasionally and stopped further scores. Shawano penetrated to the Menasha 25 at one time but Landskron, alert Menasha tackle, recovered a fumble to end the threat.

Menasha highlights during the remainder of the game were a 26 yard kickoff return by Jack Grode and forward pass from DuCharme to Shaw who with a lateral to Landskron that gained 12 yards. Shawano intercepted a pass just before the end of the game and Meifort went 30 yards and nearly got away for another touchdown.

Dill's First Win

The victory was the first for Coach Clifford Dill over Menasha in football since he went to Shawano. That the score wasn't higher, wasn't Dill's fault. He kept his first string in the game until well along in the fourth quarter when the players were nearly exhausted from the heat.

Shawano tossed four passes, completing three with Red on the 40 yard line and Gottschalk, right end, catching two for long gains. The Shawano players blocked savagely and charged viciously. McKenzie, a Shawano substitute, was tossed out of the game after being in on just one play for roughness.

Menasha followers can find some consolation in the performance of the backs who were practically on their own in attempts at gaining yardage. With some interference, DuCharme could have been shaken loose several times. Richard Sheltski's punting and running was another bright spot while Drucks, O'Brien and Grode also contributed some nice gains. Although he weighs only 130 pounds, Ed Hill probably fought the hardest of any Menasha linemen. The tackles were taken out of plays consistently by Shawano.

Cubs and Pirates Win; Bruins Remain 2 Games Behind Pittsburgh Club

Pittsburgh — (P) The Chicago Cubs, still pursuing Pittsburgh, defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 5 to 2, in two big innings before 30,014 yesterday to remain two games behind the first place Pirates as the National league race entered the final week.

Each team has seven remaining games, including three face-to-face encounters here Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Working with but two day's rest, Clay Bryant scattered eight hits in hanging up his nineteenth victory as against 11 defeats. His mates bunched most of their eight hits off a quartet of St. Louis hurlers, together with six passes and two errors, to score three runs in the third inning and four in the seventh.

Bob Weiland, Bill McGee, Clyde Shoun and Max Macon held the Cubs to seven singles and a double. However, a fumble by Joe Medwick and a pass was mixed in with singles by Hack, Herman and Reynolds for three runs off Weiland in the third. It was Weiland's eleventh defeat against 15 victories.

Stu Martin's fumble of Hack's grounder sandwiched between two passes and Demaree's single off McGee, Galan's double and Hartnett's fly off Shoun accounted for the other four runs in the seventh.

REDS ARE SCUTTLED

Pittsburgh — (P) Old Fred (Roosebud) Lucas, fat and 36, yesterday the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 3, scuttled for the fourteenth straight victory over his former teammates since he left their roster to join the Pittsburgh Pirates five years ago.

The score was 5 to 3 and two of the Cincinnati runs were chalked up in the ninth inning in a gesture so menacing Old Rosebud had to let Bill Swift finish.

The chill of autumn enveloped Forbes field as a crowd of 77,147 fans turned out to see Pittsburgh's last home stand of the regular season. Old Rosebud gave up 11 hits, Milwaukee — (P) Marquette university's football team went into its final week of preparation today for the season opener against Wisconsin at Madison next Saturday with a definite idea of what the first-string backfield would look like.

Coach Paddy Driscoll and his aides favored Dan Koster at quarterback, Johnny Matich and reckless Reggie Colagelli at the half-backs, and Larry Laysenar at fullback. All are veterans and juniors.

Driscoll's biggest problem, emphasized even as the varsity romped over the freshmen in a regulation game Saturday, 41 to 0, is that of replacements.

GIANTS ELIMINATED

Boston — (P) The Boston Bees yesterday eliminated the New York Giants from any mathematical chance for the National league pennant by sweeping a double header, 3 to 2 in eleven innings, and 4 to 3.

Danny MacFadyen and Miloum Shoffner stopped the Terry-men, who had advanced to third place yesterday by taking a double-header here. Thrice balked in his effort to land victory no. 13, MacFadyen limited the Giants to six hits, all singles and three of them by Bob Seeds, and won in the eleven-inning when Seeds lost Elbie Fletcher's fly to short right center in the sun. The ball dropped for a two-bagger and Debs Garms cantered across the plate with the deciding tally. Bill Lohman was the losing pitcher.

In the night cap the Bees pounced on Clyde Castleton for five hits and three runs in the first inning, sending him on his way before one

Count Rossi Averages 69 Miles an Hour in Annual Regatta

Washington — (P) Count Theodor Rossi of Italy won the gold cup at the annual president's regatta without competition yesterday averaging 69.675 miles an hour, record time for the event.

Rossi had no competition from boats of gold cup class, but outdistanced a group of smaller craft which had a two-mile start on the 15-mile route. Only George Seay of Norfolk made the outcome close. Rossi passed him about 400 yards from the finish line.

President Roosevelt watched the main event on the regatta's closing day program and then called Rossi to his yacht to extend congratulations.

The Italian's one-man show overshadowed the recording of these new American record for mile trial heats:

Philadelphia 14, New York 10.

MILWAUKEE—(P) Cecil Isbell teamed with veteran Arnie Herber in the Green Bay passing attack as the Packers yesterday smothered the Chicago Cardinals under a barrage of aerials and took a 28 to 7 National Professional league victory.

A crowd of 22,000 saw the Packers come back into the running for Western division honors with two victories against one defeat. And it was Isbell and Herber, both on the thriving and receiving end, who figured prominently in three of the four Green Bay touchdown marches.

A 41-yard run by Joe Laws in the second quarter set the stage for the first Bay touchdown, which came on an eight-yard pass from Bob Monnett to Milton Gantenben. Clarke Hinkle place kicked the extra point.

Hinkle Scores

In the same period Isbell tossed two passes to Don Hutson, Packer end, one good for 28 yards and another for 8. A third pass, Herber to Isbell, brought the ball to the 10, and Hinkle rammed it over on three backs at the line. He then converted.

Herbert passed to Isbell for a 27-yard gain in the third period and Isbell tossed one to Herber from that spot for the third Bay marker. Engbreiten kicked for the extra point.

Federation Leader Hits at Federal Wage Regulation

John P. Frey Calls for Co-operation Between Labor and Industry

Houston, Texas — (U) — John P. Frey, chief of the A. F. of L. metal trades department, attacked federal regulation of wages and industrial relations today and called for greater cooperation between labor and industry.

In his annual report to the metal trades conference, Frey said the trade union movement was founded on "self-government in industry instead of government by bureaus and administrators."

Congress, he declared, would do much to prevent recurring depressions by establishing "the proper and adequate rules under which business is to be conducted."

"Business and organized labor through the conference room and collective bargaining, must then work out the problem of stable production and the economically sound division of the wealth being created," he said.

Hits Regulation
Frey's report criticized both the wage-hour law and the national labor relations act. The administration of the latter, he said, was a "disrupting" factor in American industry.

"Both the law and the personnel must be changed before the board under the Wagner act can constructively and safely apply its authority to protect the right of wage earners to be represented by organizations of their own choosing," he said.

The wage-hour law, he continued, conferred "extraordinary authority" on the administrator amounting to "bureaucratic or commissar control."

The metal trades chief also criticized the activity of communists in labor movement, the political ventures of the rival CIO, and its contributions to political campaigns.

In less specific terms, he struck at centralization of government authority, "college professors and theorists in administrative posts," and at a "super-intelligent, highly-educated minority" he said was preaching that workers should trade their independence for security.

Must Rule Selves
"Should the day come," he continued, "when American workmen, instead of depending upon themselves, depend upon outsiders for leadership and guidance, then American wage earners will have lost their independence and their capacity for self-government."

Recalling some of the political activities of the CIO, Frey said: "The definite entry of the CIO into the political fields creates an issue which we cannot escape. The political activities of the CIO have led many representatives in state legislatures and in congress to give more consideration to the probabilities of CIO. Strength than the merits of the legislative measures coming to their attention."

"The non-partisan political policy of Labor serves to indicate the most effective method of meeting this problem." (The federation's policy has been to reward its friends and punish its enemies regardless of party.)

CIO Expenditures
The political expenditures of the CIO's United Mine Workers in the 1936 Democratic presidential campaign and later in the 1938 Pennsylvania Democratic primary, Frey declared, "eclipsed all political records."

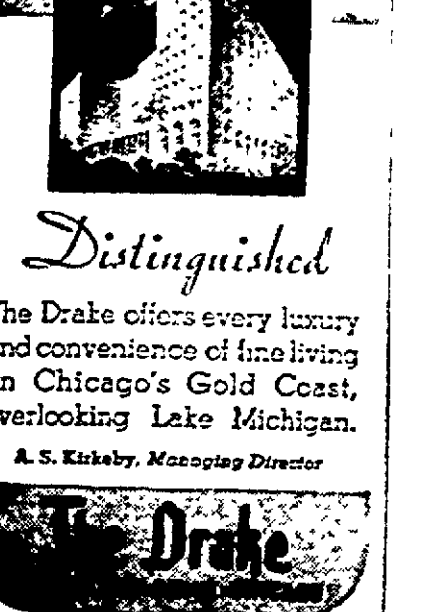

"These enormous campaign expenditures," he added, "are an evidence of what labor may expect if it is to indulge in partisan politics, a larger expenditure for political purposes than for all other trade union activities combined."

Reiterating some of his anti-communist testimony before the Dies house committee investigating un-American activities, Frey charged that the communists acquired a directive part in the American labor movement when the CIO was organized as an A. F. of L. rival.

Continued infiltration of communists into organized labor, he said, might prove a "disrupting force in the national labor movement" and shape labor policies to conform to the "industrial and political purposes of the Third International."

In calling for cooperation between business and government, Frey said both understood their problems as thoroughly "as the great majority of those who profess to be economists."

The commissaire signed to me to be seated, and in the same gesture indicated the stout man who had entered with him and was now sitting on his right. "This is Monsieur Fleuriot, head of the police mobile of Marseille," he explained. "All we wish from you at the moment, Monsieur Lumsden, is to tell us your story and to allow us to take your fingerprints."

"Surely," said I, and in a few words as I could, I told him what had happened from the time I had returned from my swim.

He nodded. "That will do," he said indifferently, and added, with a certain emphasis: "for the present." And so, after I had read through my statement and signed it and allowed my fingers to be pressed on a black, oily pad and several sheets of paper, I made my way once more down the stairs. It was more than an hour before I was sent for again, and as I followed the gendarme up the stairs for the second time, I reflected that I must watch my step and keep a curb on my tongue if I didn't want to land myself deeper in the morass.

My room door was open as I passed it, and a hasty glance inside showed me the bedclothes tumbled untidily on the floor and the content of my suitcase strewn over the uncovered mattress, but the broken tile cracked reassuringly under my tread as I walked on, and I entered the place of inquisition with my head held high.

I realized, with an unpleasant shock, that the Juge d'instruction was also present. We exchanged formal bows, but I saw by the glint in his eye that he had not forgotten our last exchange of compliments and bore me no love for it.

"Monsieur Lumsden," he said, and tapped a closely written sheet of paper on the table before him, "I have here your account of your movements this morning, from the time that you went for a bathe, but I find that Monsieur le Commissaire has omitted to ask what
